WE NOMINATE

The thirteen Princeton women, volunteers all, who during the past week under the guidance of the Nurse's Aide Service of the American Red Cross have placed service far above self in helping the Princeton Community meet head-on the threat posed by an "outbreak of influenza in some form." While Princeton Hospital and near-by installations of the Armed Forces have long been aware of the important roles Red Cross Nurse's Aides play in their day-to-day operations, it took a sudden "flu flare-up" on the University Campus, with the conversion of the Student Center into an Infirmary Annex, to drive home the need for maintaining (and constantly strengthening) a staff of trained volunteers capable of assisting professional nurses.

It was in mid-week that the University, implementing a preconceived "crash program," doubled the number of patient-beds by transforming an octagonal-shaped social hall and a large rectangular restaurant into an 85-bed auxiliary hospital. The number of patients in this annex, in the long ago the core of the University's library-system, was not to climb much above the 60-mark, but the immediate concern was for understanding nursing help—particularly in New Jersey, a state in which hospital wards have recently been closed off because of nursing shortages. The University searched the state and finally turned to the Red Cross. Hours later, shortly after the Princeton Chairman of the Nurse's Aide Service had been routed out of a local hairdresser, volunteers started reporting to the Student Center.

With only 21 workers now on its active roster, and in view of its heavy commitments in Princeton Hospital, the 18-year old Aide Service found itself harpressed. Some of the problems it solved by adjusting individual schedules to key periods, such as morning bed-making hours, mid-afternoons and the always-long evenings in a medical facility. Unexpected help came in the form of "volunteer volunteers," meaning persons qualified by training and experience but not directly affiliated with the Nurse's Aide Program. Two registered nurses, no longer active in nursing, promptly offered their services; a licensed practical nurse, now working a full five-day week in business, took over in the Center from 2:00 until 8:00 p.m. this past Sunday.

Several of those assuming added responsibilities for the well-being of university undergraduates, many of whom are a considerable distance from home, are the mothers of below-teen youngsters. Others have disrupted plans of long standing and still others have no other previous university connections. Behind the "flu headlines" in Princeton this week have been: Mesdames Hans G. Bauer, Elmer E. Chase, Frank L. Eldmann, Walter Gibson, Howard S. McMorris (Chairman, Nurse's Aide Service), J. Leonard Moore, Robert R. Palmer, John H. Platten Jr., Harold J. Saum, E. Baldwin Smith, Walton Van Winkle, J. Taylor Woodward and Joseph H. Wright 2nd.

For strengthening the American tradition of neighbor helping neighbor; for dramatizing for the benefit of the entire Princeton Community the importance of trained volunteers in times of stress; for understanding the wisdom of preparing for the unforeseeable; the above-named are Town Topics' nominees for

ON-AGAIN, OFF-AGAIN
Flu Trend Unsteady. Even the course of the stock market and "Sputnik" seemed steadier this week than the flu epidemic, which was on-again, off-again in Princeton. And some doctors argue that there wasn't one genuine case of Asian flu in town — only not-so-good, old American flu and a variety of viruses. For certain, the "bugs" were making the rounds.

Princeton University, forced to cancel all indoor activities last weekend and obliged to set up emergency beds in the Student Center to handle overflow cases of
"it", was past the first peak of cases as TOWN TOPICS went to press. The Infirmary total was down from 70 to about 45 and plans were made to abandon the Student Center as a "temporary hospital" by Monday. But physicians warned that the University may encounter more peaks between now and Christmas vacation.

At Princeton High School, the flu situation was normal at the beginning of the week — in fact, absenteeism proved less than normal, with many pupils no doubt anxious to catch up on their studies. Hun School, hard hit a week ago, reported a status quo this week (about one-third of the student body absent), while the Township school system and Miss Fine's School noted an increase in cold-induced absences over last week.

Thus, no pattern for the flu frenzy could be established in the Princeton area. One person caught "it" one day, another the next and the first person caught
"it" again the following week.
Some people still hadn't encountered "it". Hun School, without a football game last weekend, discovered just as many players

In Search of Daylight

I look ahead
Till April, when
D. S. T.
Comes back again!
—Uncle Wetbee's Niece

Lovers of longer daylight hours go into mourning this weekend, with the return of Standard Time. Early-risers have it easier, of course, but both clans foresee shorter days and colder weather in the immediate future.

October rainfall is running slightly above normal to date,
but it will take more precipitation in the final week to keep it so for the month. Both the short-range prediction and the 30-day forecast call for greater-than-average precipitation, with the skies scheduled to open Thursday or early Friday before clearing this weekend.

Four-line jingles such as the above are welcome for TOWN
TOPICS' weekly weather box.
Just compare them to its any of many possible weather developments (heavy frost, first snow, sparkling fall day) and send them to Box 664. They'll be used—like this one—when the occasion suits.

sidelined this week, Princeton High, after playing in the heavy rain last Friday afternoon, found no flu increase among its squad.
The epidemic was really unpredictable, and not much fun at all.

FACTS AND FIGURES

Property Values Cut. Princeton Township, responsible for more dissatisfied 1957 taxpayers than any other Mercer County municipality outside of the city of Trenton, has lost $147,937 in assessed property values as a result of appeals registered with the County Board of Taxation last month. Even so, the Township made out pretty well, since $3 residents who bothered to go before the board recovered only a small portion of the $5,695,300
total requested in the appeals.

Figures released by the board
this past week showed that Trenton, with some 900 dissidents, led the county's municipalities by a big margin with $768,285 allowed upon appeal. Princeton borough, with about 40 appellants and $8,600 in net reductions, ranked sixth in the county behind Trenton, Princeton Township, Hamilton Township ($92, 810), Pennington Borough ($11,
590) and Ewing Township ($10, 560).

The board noted that only 5.3% of the county's total taxable real estate and personal property of $426,937,367 was appealed and, in all fairness to Princeton Township, it was stressed that this municipality was the first and only municipality in the entire state to assess at 100% valuation in 1957. A move-which irritated many Princeton-ians this year and likely will irritate others elsewhere as their areas fall into the 100% classification.

Property owners whose appeals were not allowed by the County Board or those dissatisfied with the amounts of reductions allowed can appeal to the state.
The deadline for filing will be November 15.

OFF THE DRAWING BOARD

And Into the Fire? The State Bureau of Traffic Safety, which has been conducting intensity-of-flow surveys at the Washington Road-College Road intersection for years and went so far as to blueprint suggested cures for the dangerous corner's illis back in June of 1956, finally got around to sending its blueprint ideas to Princeton this week for local consideration. No promises attached, of course, but it began to look as if installation of traffic lights may not be off.
According to the Bureau's proposed plans, now gracing more than one Princeton official's desk,
four separate three-color lights would be constructed, one for each approach to the intersection.
Moreover, College Road heading west, now 27 feet wide, would be widened to 40 feet for a distance of 150 feet to permit an extra "transition" lane for cars about to make a right turn onto Washington. Other additions would include sidewalks along the north side of College and up the hill on the west side of Washington, running along parts of College and a painted "transition" lane for northbound traffic turning left into Washington.

Township officials have been agitating for improvement of the critical intersection for a long time, increasing their shouts in times of jammed-up traffic conditions, and Toward Times has hoped on the handwagon whenever press pressure was considered beneficial. It now appears that the Township's officials will achieve its long-sought goal, though the way may not be entirely smooth, what with the University, Borough and County interested in the intersection and entwined along with the Township and State.

PERSONALITIES

Mrs. Paul Mellon, the former Rachel Lambert, longtime resident of Princeton, who earned considerable social distinction this past week by serving as the only lady to entertain Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip at a private function during their much-publicized royal trip to Washington, Mrs. Mellon and her husband gave a private tea for the royal couple on Sunday afternoon at their country home in Middleburg Va., just outside the Capitol.

Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, 181 Library Place, senior executive vice-president of RCA who this week was named recipient of the coveted Industrial Research Institute Medal for 1958 to honor "outstanding accomplishment in research and development for the industry or the public welfare." Primarily responsible for the organization, growth and activities of RCA Laboratories here in the 1940s, he now has even broader responsibilities, including research and development for the entire corporation. In the 1930s, Dr. Engstrom was credited with the planning and coordination which led to the development of television.

Franklin C. (Gappy) Cappan, 198 Prospect Avenue, veteran head coach of basketball at Princeton University (since 1938), dean of Ivy League court coaches, and a former president of the American Basketball Coaches Association who this week joined 25 other basketball coaches, 34 players and three contributors to the sport as an elected member of the Helms Hall College Basket-

The Darkest Hour?

Princetonians, along with millions of other Americans, will turn their watches back an hour at 2 a.m. this Sunday and gain 60 minutes of slumber as Daylight Saving Time comes to an end for 1957. In noting the approach of this annual time-changing event, Attorney General Grover C. Richmond, Jr. of New Jersey urged citizens not to have it remembered as the darkest hour of the year.

The attorney general reminded motorists that the approaching end of DST will necessitate greater caution on the part of drivers and those affected because of the hazard of decreased visibility. "If the traffic accident pattern of New Jersey is repeated there will be an increase in traffic deaths from now until the end of the year," he said. "But the night is not inevitable."

Mr. Richmond announced there were nine auto fatalities in the State during the week ending Sunday midnight, compared with 17 in the corresponding week of 1956. The 1957 total to date was raised to 636 as against 601 on the same date a year ago. Mercer County, tenth-ranked among New Jersey's 21 counties in number of traffic deaths, has registered 31 this year, the identical number as this time in 1956.

IT'S IN THE NEWS: The fact that Martin Beck, vice-chairman of the Borough Planning Board, was asked for and received from Isadore Candebu, planning consultant assigned the Township's "master plan," a set of proposals regarding the Borough's future . . . the vice-chairman doesn't want to release any definite details regarding the ideas until they are considered at a possible special session of the board, since they include plans for next year and call for still-unsettled funds . . . known to be included in the plan are of immediate concern, of course, are the problems of zoning changes to permit middle-income apartment housing and possible extension of the downtown business area . . . a new and badly-needed traffic light at Quaker Bridge Road and U.S. 1, the first three-color regulation signal on Brunswick Pike between Trenton and New Brunswick, went into operation this past week . . . right now, its changes are slower than they are likely to be when completion of Curtiss-Wright's plant increases cross-highway traffic along Quaker Bridge . . . the Borough Board of Education learned at its Tuesday meeting that Princeton has grown large enough to start administrators thinking seriously about a special progressive class for so-called "gifted" students.

SHORT SHOTS: The Esso Education Foundation has earmarked funds for a number of New

Princetonian Robert Foster, a Harvard undergraduate of all things, this week was chosen center on the weekly all-star football team selected by the Eastern College Athletic Conference . . . athletically speaking, James Ackerman, 37 Hodge Road, was one stroke off the leading-round medalist score of 72 early this

FOR THE DISCRIMINATING

SIGNALS! UN! ZWEI! TRE! FIRE! It may look unusual to read football signals in five different languages, but it's quite usual to hear them barked in five or more each Sunday at the Institute for Advanced Study. That's when Institute scholars—men from all parts of the globe—gather for spirited games of six-man football, American style. There's no time limit on huddles, since different plays often have to be interpreted in many different languages, and there are frequent moments of confusion, since "fake reverses" and the like are difficult to explain in a half-dozen tongues, but the Instituturs play a fast brand of ball once they get going. In the reasonably typical huddle above, composed of six mathematicians figuring intricate maneuvers, American Lee Rubel (lower right) outlines a wonderfully involved play concocted by his Danish wife. Listening attentively, if not understandingly, are (clockwise) Edward Nelson, another American who lived for many years in Rome and translates moves into Italian for Romance language teammates; Sibe Mardesic, Yugoslavian speedster; Albrecht Dold, a German who gets the plays the second time around from Mr. Rubel, a proficient speaker of German; Bryan Birch, a Britisher who has trouble with the Americans' non-English accents; and Pierre Cartier, fleet-footed Frenchman. PROS AND CONS

Signs of Political Season. Princeton Borough Republicans refrained from issuing a press release this week—perhaps waiting for a last-minute blast, perhaps confident of success—while Borough Democrats sounded off on a single subject, the timely matter of assessments. In the Township, however, it was a far different story. The Democratic candidates attacked the all-GOP Township Committee, challenging its members to a verbal fight. The Republican aspirants stood up for their brothers-in-office.

"The performance of the Republican Township Committee in the paving of Magnolia Lane, next to Littlebrook School, suggests gross inefficiency and loose practice," James W. Foley and William W. Marvel, Democrats for Committeemen, charged. "For this expenditure of almost $22,000, the Committee owes the taxpayers of the Township a frank, clear and immediate explanation. By publicly requesting this explanation now, two weeks before the election, we give our opponents and their party-colleagues in on the Committee enough time to present their case before the voters go to the polls."

Picking out Magnolia Lane developments from the Committee meeting of November 30, 1955, through the session in September of this year, Messrs. Foley and Marvel claimed "the job for which an original appropriation of $7,400 had been made was nearly a year late in being finished, ultimately cost the taxpayers $21,900, just short of three times the original amount and used up over 40 per cent of the total Township capital investment funds for two years — 1956 and 1957."

The Democratic candidates submitted their challenge by stating, "We wait in eager anticipation for the explanation of this hoo-doggle by the Township Committee. We trust that in answering the taxpayers of this Township the members of the Committee will bear in mind how often they tell the rest of us that they never have any money for necessary sidewalks or for recreational facilities."

On Other Side of Fence. "In the public statements of the Democratic candidates for Township Committee, we have noticed a tendency to find fault with previous local administrations because they have not accomplished all the things that need to be done or that would be desirable in the community," R. Kenneth Fairman and Stanley C. Smoyer, GOP candidates for Committeemen, wrote in an open letter this week. "They imply that, if they are elected, these things will be properly done."

Contending that such accomplishments aren't easily done, Messrs. Fairman and Smoyer said they believe three of the biggest Township needs are sidewalks for school children, additional recreational facilities and the State Route 206-A truck bypass. They argued that the present administration "has already planned a program which will provide adequate sidewalk approaches to the schools and has budgeted money for starting this program," the needs for community recreation "are being studied in connection with the master plan" and "the present administration has already succeeded in having the State lay out the route on the map."

The Township's GOP hopefuls noted that they also recognize as desirable, but not so essential as the first three items, such community facilities as a public outdoor swimming pool and an artificial-ice skating rink. "In addition," they elaborated, "we favor bringing desirable non-manufacturing tax-producing businesses into the Township in suitably restricted areas. But we must be sure that they are desirable and do not create more problems than they solve."

Wishing "won't make all these desires come true, the Republicans stressed. "Municipalities, like private businesses, have to operate within the revenues they raise—and the revenues come largely from taxes on the real property owned by the citizens. Many of the Township's citizens understandably feel that the tax burden is already too heavy. The job of the Township Committee, as we see it, is to establish a priority list for the needs and wants of our growing community and then to work down the list as rapidly as public support and a reasonable tax rate will permit."

Are the Shares Fair? In their statement this week, Raymond F. Male, Democratic candidate for Mayor, and Richard W. Colman and Richard A. Lester, Borough Council candidates, observed that "within a week Princeton taxpayers are going to be faced

their checks for the fourth quarter, payable on or before November 1, one question will be uppermost in many minds—"Am I paying more than my fair share?"

Speaking in behalf of himself and his running-mates, Mr. Male charged that "the assessment situation in Princeton was allowed to 'slide' year after year. For more than a generation, the assessment value of new buildings was largely determined by the slipshod method of accepting one-third of the sale value as an accurate measure. Coupled with this was the failure of the Borough Assessor to seek out available information on building permits from the Borough Engineer's office. This made it possible for additions, swimming pools, greenhouses and other innovations to be built without a change being reflected in the assessment."

Mr. Male explained that, "when the whole thing came to a head and Borough government called in a team of professionals, the extreme change in individual assessments was, in many cases, staggering. Furthermore, for those whose taxes had increased, the hardship was made more painful by the fact that 1957's increase was made payable in two quarters instead of being spread over four."

Concluding, the Democratic mayoralty aspirant insisted "it is not too late" to appoint a citizens' committee to review the Borough's re-appraisal reports and "to make public their judgment as to the soundness and fairness of assessment policy." Mr. Male pledged that he and his two cohorts, if elected, "will recommend to the Council the investment of a few hundred dollars to employ a professional for several days each year to check on changes and to adjust our assessment when shifts in value are detected."

Candidates' Meetings Set. While the non-partisan League of Women Voters of Princeton prepared for its annual candidates' meeting, set for 8 p.m. this Thursday in the Nassau Street School auditorium, the Republican Club of Princeton announced it will sponsor another candidates' session at 8:15 p.m. next Tuesday in the Chambers Street firehouse. All lo-

"Bad Neighbor" Policy

Though they've only been backyard neighbors for 10 months now, Charles R. Erdman Jr., former Republican mayor of Princeton, feels it's high time Governor Robert B. Meyner, Morven's staunch Democratic resident, moved away. He said so in no uncertain terms while addressing a GOP rally in Trenton last week.

Mr. Erdman, who lives at 20 Boudinot Street, a stone's throw from the gubernatorial mansion's swimming pool, told his partisan audience: "It is safe to assume that anyone who is not economical in the management of his own home is likely to be extravagant in public office. Meyner has had a $30,000 parking lot placed on the formerly green lawn at the side of Morven on which to park the numerous buses that have brought Hudson County politics to Princeton."

"Even the swimming pool at Morven has been painted three times since spring. These are small items, but they also are keys to the spending habits of Morven's inhabitants."

Contending that Governor Meyner is primarily concerned with "the need for new taxes" and that he "has not achieved one notable accomplishment for this state" in four years in office, Mr. Erdman added: "Much has been said of Lloyd Marsh's son who took a civil service position and did his job—which is no disgrace—but we have heard very little of Governor Meyner's brother-in-law who, two weeks after Meyner took office, was given a $7,500 job in the department I headed (Conservation and Economic Development) merely in order to accompany the governor on the cocktail circuit."

The ardent Princeton Republican concluded: "Please work hard so that I will have a new next door neighbor next year."

cal candidates of both parties will answer questions from League members and the public at this Thursday evening's gathering. The five GOP candidates for Borough and Township offices will be available for questioning at next Tuesday's get-together.

Elsewhere on the political front, the Mercer County Democratic Women's Campaign Committee reported it will hold a reception honoring Gov. and Mrs. Robert B. Meyner from 4:30 to 6 p.m. October 31 at the home of Mrs. Joseph E. McLean, Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, and the comparable Republican organization announced that Princeton women are invited to participate in two "coffee hours" in Lawrenceville this Thursday in honor of Mrs. Malcolm Forbes, wife of the GOP gubernatorial candidate. The first will be held at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Harry Ratcliffe Jr., 831 President Avenue, and the second is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. at the Lawrenceville School field house.

Apparently the Independents have not lost sight of the November 5 election, either. Mrs. William Kielberg, 50 Woodland Drive noted that the executive committee of the Independent Meyner for Governor Club met last week at her house and expressed satisfaction that a movement to raise money for campaign purposes is in good shape. "We are very pleased with the large number of people, including Independents and Republicans, who are supporting Governor Meyner for a third term," she said.

FUND DRIVE PROGRESSES

Now in Full Swing. Solicitation for United Community Fund is making good headway throughout the Princeton community, with about 1,000 canvassers collecting subscriptions for the $170,000 campaign. The goal represents an increase of $20,000 over last year.

The first result from an organization constitutes a good omen for the campaign. The F.W. Woolworth Company reports that 100 per cent of its 26 employees have contributed, representing a 67 per cent increase in the store over last year. A Woolworth employee, Mrs. Ethel Cisney, was responsible for the solicitation.

Mrs. Jan Rajchman, chairman of the neighborhood division, reports that the campaign for home solicitations is one of the most carefully planned ever held, with 377 solicitors making calls. "Great care is being used to prevent the duplication of calls," Mrs. Rajchman said.

Most of the firms employing large numbers of people are conducting their campaigns this week. Princeton University and the private and public schools of the area are also collecting their subscriptions during this week. The chairman of the campaign,

H. C. Sturhahn, has emphasized the importance of each subscriber increasing his subscription slightly.—Continued on Page 10

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

"Witness" Opens This Thursday. Court will be called to order at the Playmill on Alexander Street at 8:30 p.m. this Thursday when "Witness for the Prosecution" opens as the inaugural production of the Princeton Community Players' 24th season. Subsequent performances will be given at the same hour this Friday and Saturday, and also the evenings of October 31, November 1 and November 2.

At mid-week, as TOWN TOPICS went to press, seats for this week-end's performances, priced at $2 and all reserved, were selling well. Tickets can be obtained at the University Store, the Princeton Agency at 37 Chambers Street (phone 6880), or at the box office prior to each curtain. Subscription tickets for the series of five plays to be presented by the Players during their 1957-58 season also are still available.

Director John F. Becker has announced that his cast, one of the largest ever assembled for any Players' show, is prepared to recreate the roles which brought acclaim from both critics and audiences alike when the Agatha Christie mystery opened its successful Broadway run in 1951. Elaine Benoit, an accomplished young Philadelphia actress, will make her Princeton debut as the leading lady, with Constance Baring-Gould, Van Eickert, Reed Armstrong and Alan Richards also making their theatrical bows. Familiar favorites of local theatergoers will include Lorin Zissman in the leading male role, Clark Cameron and Nicholas Muller Jr.

The suspenseful courtroom drama, set in post-war England, has brought a new look to the Playmill, according to Director Becker. The theatre has been transformed into London's Old Bailey, and members of the audience will serve as if spectators in the actual courtroom. Here the secret of the mystery's surprise, double-twist ending will be revealed.

MCCARTER THEATRE

From Dickens to Thomas. Emlyn Williams, the distinguished actor-director-playwright from Wales via London, resorted to make-up, costumes and all the equipment in the actor's proverbial trunk, when, on his last visit to America, he portrayed Charles Dickens during a tour that took him coast to coast, plus a "by popular demand" repeat engagement on Broadway.

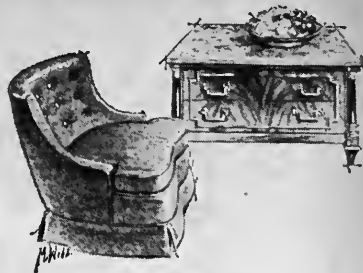

Now on a very brief visit to the U.S. and Canada, Williams, having closed a healthy New York run of "A Boy Growing Up" last Sunday, will bring the hit show to McCarter Theatre at 8:30 p.m. this Friday and 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Tickets for all three performances—particularly good ones for the "thrill" matinee—were available at mid-week as TOWN TOPICS went to press.

In stressing the significance of the Williams stop here, McCarter's managing directors noted that Philadelphia and other major cities will have to wait for a year, "maybe two" before the busy man-of-theatre brings the show back.

For "A Boy Growing Up," the elegant tail-coat, trimmed beard and red carnation of Dickens are discarded. Williams comes on stage in a blue suit, white shirt and red tie—as himself, in fact—and makes no attempt to capture the externals of his fellow Welshman, Dylan (pronounced "Dillon") Thomas. Thomas described himself as a "sub-noted story-

"Air of Permanency"

This week, with the Princeton Community Players ushering in their 24th season in town and their first full season at the Playmill, some of the theatrical group's members also began a drive for equipment for the Alexander Street showplace. "An air of permanency pervades our mill-turned-theatre," one member commented, "as the time has come to provide permanent equipment, particularly permanent seats." Gerald Skidbins, drive chairman, stressed that theatre seats are urgently needed, since the Playmill is now in use on a year-round basis.

Alan Downer, popular University professor and longtime supporter of the Community Players, added fuel to the organization's drive with these eloquent words on the value of such groups: "A national theatre is the most accurate measure of its citizens. We sometimes forget that the American national theatre is not the two handful of productions staged near Times Square, but the thousands upon thousands of plays presented by the community and college theatres across the country. Broadway stands, far too often, merely for the professional, slick and hollow; the nation-wide amateur stage reflects more truly our enthusiasms, our doubts, and our delights. It should be cherished by all who love the theatre as entertainment, inspiration, relaxation or challenge."

teller" but one American newspaperman (when he visited this country in 1953) wrote that he looked like "an unmade bed."

"I never met Dylan," says Mr. Williams, "but I think I know him well enough to call him by his first name; and I know his photographs well enough to know that we have no resemblance at all. He was tall—tall for a Welshman, that is—about five foot three."

But, if it is Emlyn Williams who comes out on the stage, it is Dylan Thomas who remains there—and a whole village of Welshmen (and Welshwomen). Thomas visits an imposing uncle and an aunt "whom I can never think of except as my uncle's wife"; he gets taken along to a day's jaunt with the men of the village (wives forbidden); has supper in the home of a schoolmate where a visiting clergyman, "with a smile like a razor blessed the food as if he didn't like it at all"; and remembers many another boyhood story.

Not "A Reading"—or "Poetry," Williams observed last week in New York that "I'm an avid reader and I enjoy poetry—all the poetry I can understand, that is, which is enough for any one man. But this show is not a 'reading' and it is not derived from the poetry of Dylan Thomas—but from his short stories, some of the most entrancing in the English language. Literary people, better qualified to rank him than I, say that Thomas is one of the most important poets of this century; as a man of the theatre, I felt that his stories, if acted, had great dramatic possibilities, and audiences have been kind enough to agree with me. The sketches come mainly out of the collection, 'Portrait of the Artist as a Young Dog.' Quite Early One Morning' and 'Adventures in the Skin Trade.' They carry Thomas from his boyhood to his first hilarious visit to London."

EMLYN WILLIAMS, who will create one of the major transformations to be seen on the stage today at McGarrett Theatre on October 25 and 26, is pictured going through a portion of his popular presentation, "A Boy Growing Up." His words at the moment of photo-taking: "We ran to the corner in case the jumped..."

Williams emphasized that the performance could never be classified as "a reading." "Do you know that I speak almost as many words as Hamlet and King Lear together? It took me almost a year to memorize and work out this show. I come on with a pile of books; SAY they are the stories, lay them on the floor and never look at them again; thereafter I sit, jump up, lie down, pull faces, walk, run, wink, cry, laugh, play the piano and paddle in the sea. If this sounds like an orgy of over-acting, I'm sorry—it's just my desire to impress on you that this is NOT and never could be READING."

While waiting for Williams' arrival, McGarrett's management also announced that, through the cooperation of Columbia Artists Management, the Dancers of Ball will appear here for a lone performance on Tuesday evening, November 19. Included in the troupe will be I Mario, Ball's greatest dancer-choreographer of this century; the Leguons (nine-to-11-year-old dancers whose careers are finished when they reach adolescence); clowns from the village of Tabanan; Nigrah Raka, pupil and protégé of Mario and Ball's greatest contemporary male dancer since Mario—and the Gamelan Orchestra from the Kleran Palace.

"Bearing in mind that it would cost over $3,000 to visit Ball (and then no one could be sure of seeing a star-assembled aggregation such as this)," CAM has commented, "a ticket to this is the highest entertainment bargain ever offered the American public—Continued on Page 8"

COME CLEAN
New Laundromat. Eight gleaming powder blue Westinghouse washing machines are lined up in a row, ready to go to work at 40
Leigh Avenue.
They are the backbone of the new Laundromat Center where your clothes will come clean whether they like it or not. (40 Leigh is between John and Witherspoon and it is the former premises of Claridge Wine and Liquor.)
These new Westinghouse machines, commercial weight with heavier motor and timing mechanism
than you would have at home, are joined by some big driers, an extractor and a giant machine that will take 25 pounds of laundry in contrast to the nine-pound load carried by each of the standard machines.

Take your clothes, leave them for the attendant and come back later—no customer-operated machines at Laundromat Center.
The owner and his helper have been to special Westinghouse training schools where they learned, not only the secrets of the machinery, but also the secrets of spot and stain removal,
the proper use of bleach and bluing and so on. You're better off if you leave it all to them.
Diapers receive a special chemical rinse that leaves them softer and more surgically clean than they might be otherwise. Blankets go into the big machine where they are timed by hand in a short cycle with warm water instead of hot. Pillows and throw rugs can be fed into this giant maw, too.

If you'd like finished shirts,
Laundromat Center will do them for you at 25c each. You may have 24-hour service if you bring them in by noon. Sheets can be finished too, if you specify.
The pleasant powder-blue shop opens today—October 24, and for its first week, it will give you one free wash and one free dry if you take along the coupon on page 34
of this issue of Town Topics.

Hungry? We are able in this short space to offer you two kinds of victuals, as they say in the western movies. One is the quick snack, or supper.
The other is an elaborate meal that you probably will plan on a long time ahead. Both are equally delicious, equally well-prepared.

First, let's have that snack. It's tomato pie prepared at Andy's Diner on Nassau Street. If you're alone, you'll want an individual one, starting at 65c. If you have a big jumbo family, try the big jumbo size, $1.60 and up.

The starting prices refer to plain tomato pies. The "and up" covers anchovies, mushrooms,
sweet sausages, or green pepper
and onions. Buy one to take out, or to eat at Andy's any time from 6 p.m. to midnight, or until 2
a.m. Sunday morning.

There's a good bowl of Manhattan
clam chowder that can "go out," too, and you can combine
it with your pizza for interesting dreams.

Hurry for Horror
All Hallow's Eve and Mischief Night sneak up on us like Christmas and before you know it, a costume is in order and it's already late in the day.
There is a tremendous collection of horrible faces at Zinder's, and a mangled rubber foot and hand to match.
Plus big ears, handle-bar mustaches and make-up kits to lend, shall we say, verisimilitude.
Princeton Stationers and Urken's have mask collections,
too, and Zinder's, Bamberger's, Urken's and Woolworth's are all costumers with a full line of the usual ready-to-wear
spook suits.
Do-it-yourselfers may buy cotton cambric for costumes at the Fabric Shop for 39c a yard.
It's black, orange, Kelly green, red or yellow, and there are print percales at three yards for a dollar. "Mommy, make me a costume like a satellite?"

Out at Tany Lane's Applegarth, just beyond Hightstown, there is a new chef who has decided to put aside city ways for the rural life. He used to be at the Sherry Netherland, and now he is in the nether land of far Hightstown, brewing fine and mysterious sauces and showing his skill with ragout.

His name is Alfred McClary,
and he is a master at sauces, particularly if a roast duckling lies beneath. Louisiana shrimp creole is another specialty, served temptingly with Carolina rice.

Another special sauce goes with some fine swordfish and there is an excellent recipe for frogs' legs that comes to the table each Thursday. The duck is for Thursday, too, Friday, the shrimp.

On Saturday, chef McClary presents prime ribs of beef. It's an unusually sophisticated cuisine for a country restaurant, and of course the decor is urban, too.

A meticulous master in the matter of detail, the new chef actually makes his own sauce tartare,
and his subtleties with shrimp give new flavor even to such an old friend as the shrimp cocktail.

The Applegarth is open from 5 p.m. every day except Mondays.
The number for reservations is Hightstown 8-9843.

There are four plain napkins to match. The black thread subdued the strong contrasting color and makes a weave that is easy to look at, but not dull in any sense. Four mats are $4.95.

Straw mats from the Philippines look like coarse linen. They are straw colored with pleasant leaf and twig designs applied on them in brown, beige or green straw. You may have oval or oblong, 75c each.

A modern tablecloth is made of good big loud square plaids, in cotton and linen fabric. This one is shaggy, of course, but also round if you like, which is a pleasant surprise.

Linen cloths in natural linen color have been treated to some gold stripes along the edge. These would be excellent with a gold-banded china. The cloths come in large sizes, 54 by 72, for $6.95.

Over in the rug department, Philip Farouk's store is showing a classic Nundah Indian rug, 4 by 6 feet for $3.50. (A little 2 by 3 is possible, too.) These are the white wool rugs with the crowd embroidery in color.

Hand-hooked rugs, oval or oblong, are blended of wool, linen and cotton in traditional American floral patterns. They cost $15 for a 3 by 5 rug.

Button, Button. There is no connection at all between the buttons we are about to describe and those mismatched things you find at the bottom of the sewing basket when your husband has a paying shirt. These are antique buttons and they have been transformed into earrings, necklaces and bracelets, now in the window display at LaVake-Reid's Jewelers, and for sale there, Nassau.

There are hundreds of different antique buttons, of course: some of them are bone, others are cloth, leather or even, one

The resulting jewelry is quite resolute, with graceful full-gree, riotous but delicate color and exquisite gold mounting that is perfectly suited to the colorful "jewels" that make up the piece.

This jewelry is made in Philadelphia by Miriam F. Hayv, and each piece is different from the rest. There are, reportedly, no two alike. You may look the various pieces over at LaVake-Reid's and choose from several styles of earrings, necklaces and bracelets.

THEATRE INTIME

Reading "The Rainmaker." Continuing a new policy of staging more modern works, begun with last spring's production of "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," Princeton University's Theatre Intime will present "The Rainmaker" from November 14 through 23 in Murray Theatre on the University campus. All performances will start at 8:30 p.m., and tickets are now available at the University Store (Princeton 1-5414).

"Rainmaker," a successful Broadway comedy in 1954, will serve as Intime's first major effort in a season that will feature the works of Eliot, Saroyan, Jonson, Arthur Miller and several student playwrights. The play, which concerns charity and love in a dust-bowl village, opened in New York at the Cort Theatre and starred Geraldine Page, Darren McGavin, Albert Salmi and Cameron Prud'homme.

David Sawyer, remembered to Princeton theatergoers for his performances as Joe Doyle in "Clash By Night" and in "Angels and the Lion," will direct "Rainmaker." He has assisted backstage in a number of productions, and last year directed one of the prize-winning, student-written one-act plays.

At 8:30 p.m. this Thursday and Friday, Intime's freshman presentations of Eliot's "Sweeney Agonistes" and Saroyan's "Hello Out There" will be offered in Murray Theatre. The public is invited to attend, with no admission charged.

FILM FORUM

Capra Movie Next Week. The Princeton Film Forum, an informal 16mm. film group, will kick off its 1957-58 season at 8 p.m. next Monday in the auditorium of the First Presbyterian Church. Highlight of the program, launching the group's sixth year, will be "You Can't Take It With You," Frank Capra's masterful comedy with James Stewart and Jean Arthur. "White Mane," a photo-poem which has won a number of festival awards, also will be shown.

Subscriptions for the Film Forum's schedule of seven evenings of motion picture entertainment are priced at $4 each and can be obtained by calling Benjamin Shimerberg at Princeton 1-2206 or dropping him a card at 28 Cuyler Road. Double subscriptions are priced at $6. All showings will be held on Monday evenings, the ensuing programs to fall on November 18, December 16, January 20, February 17, March 24 and April 28.

that burns brightly between Cary and Frank. Sophia boasts ample attributes to stand out in any crowd, but her presence is punctuated particularly in Edna and Edward Anhalt's screen version of C. S. Forester's "The Gun" because the film—and how—the sole feminine role in a cast numbering thousands of men. Cinematographers Fred Mandl and Manuel Benquerer are to be congratulated for the way in which they manage to achieve a happy union between Miss Loren and Vista-Vision, not to mention the way in which they jam the thousands of men into scene after scene of stunning pageantry.

For two hours and 12 minutes, Messrs. Grant and Sinatra—in addition to devoting logical time to Miss Loren—concern themselves with a deal and an ordeal in Spain. The former, in the role of a British Navy officer (vintage 1810), agrees to help the latter, a Spanish guerrilla leader, haul a cannon rattle over the Spanish hills and plains to fire it at the walled city of Avila. The patriotic guerrilla, in turn, agrees to help his British colleague ship the cannon out of Spain so that it can be used against the Germans. It isn't much of a story, really, and it takes too long to be related and Miss Loren doesn't add her able co-stars in the acting department. There are moments of merit for people who like pictures of great scope and color, and Stanley Kramer does have a certain knack when it comes to making the unimportant seem vastly significant.

The Joker is Wild (October 27-29) plays for three days. Frank Sinatra's stay at the Playhouse, though he manages a quick switch

Licenses Replaced by Mail

Motorists who have misplaced their driver's license or registration certificate may avail themselves of an improved service which enables them to drive before a duplicate is secured.

By notifying the Division of Motor Vehicles at the State House in Trenton of the loss, the driver will receive by mail an application for a duplicate. This form contains a temporary driver permit which is valid for a specified period, making it possible for one to operate a motor vehicle while waiting for a duplicate.

In order to replace a lost license, the motorist is required to complete the form and return it to Trenton with a $1 fee. An applicant may present his completed form to any motor vehicle agent for validation.

From Miguel, king of the Spanish guerrillas, to Joe E. Lewis, king of the U.S. night clubs. For the versatile Mr. Sinatra, the change isn't much, either the second movie. Not that Frankie doesn't give it his all—he does—but somehow Mr. Lewis, singer-turned-boozier-turned-funnyman, doesn't seem to make a full-blown Vista-Vision biography in the grand Hollywood manner. He's a reasonably entertaining comic, to be sure; yet the silver screen loses a lot of its lustre when it must dig so deep to find a life to portray.

Frankie is fine as Joe E.—probably because he's Frankie, not Joe E. He sings a couple of pop "standards" in good voice, then emotes well as he runs through the customary number of heart-breaks, girls and bottles of whiskey. Mitzl Gaynor is attractive as the actress who is Mr. Lewis' bride for an unhappy while. Jeanne Crain is pleasant as the gal who spares herself much trouble by marrying someone else while Mr. Lewis is overseas entertaining the troops and Eddie Albert contributes another helpful performance as Mr. Lewis' faithful and unworried piano player. Even the direction, by Charles Victor, represents careful, honest work. But isn't there a more appealing subject for so great an overall effort?

Until They Sail (October 30-November 2) stars Jean Simmons, Joan Fontaine, Paul Newman, Piper Laurie and Charles Drake. Its producer is Charles ("The Bad and the Beautiful") Schnee. Its director is Robert Wise, director of a number of standout film products. Its background is New Zealand, impressively pictured on the CinemaScope canvas. In spite of all these "plus" factors, the net result comes awfully close to "minus." Perhaps the story is simply too contrived and not as absorbing as might be hoped.

"Until They Sail" takes place in the city of Christchurch and covers World War II from beginning to end. Most of New Zealand's handsome, young men are far from home fighting for their loved ones, while a number of handsome, young American men—troops stationed or recuperating in New Zealand—are preoccupied with fighting for these same loved ones. In particular, the romantic ups-and-downs of four sisters are unfolded by way of a four-part plot, and just about every imaginable entanglement is included. Some 10,000 New Zealand women married American men during the period dramatized, a good reason not to export the film Down Under.

THE GREEN

The Green Man (October 24-26) stars Alastair Sim, England's fine comedian, and offers him a field day. Playing one of those wonderfully improbable roles so dear to the British, this time a well-bred, charming but determined assassin, he generates more laughter from many straight lines than most actors can from funny ones. The story is rather slight and fairly obvious, as the assassin seeks to blow up an English politician and is thwarted constantly in his endeavor by a host of zany characters; yet, Mr. Sim is blessed with an extremely good supporting cast and the comedy is pleasant from start to finish. In fact, the film may even seem better than it actually is because of its big-screen, serious-minded immediate predecessors at both Princeton theatres.

The Miller's Beautiful Wife (October 28-30), in Italian with English titles, is a run-of-the-mill Italian picture, used primarily to exploit the obvious, aforementioned talents of Sophia Loren, the latest in a long line of Jovelles "exported" from Rome to Hollywood. There's no denying that Miss Loren is easy to look at—especially in CinemaScope and lavish color—but what she is asked to do and say doesn't add up to grade-A entertainment. Vittorio DeSica is capable, per usual, though his talents, too, are wasted on a nondescript.

THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME: Princeton's newest street, Avalon Place, a 953-foot link between Bayard Lane and John Street which is expected to relieve much of today's traffic congestion on Nassau Street, is pictured from the east end looking toward Bayard. The 1957-style avenue is falling a bit behind schedule, but, if good weather continues, should be completed by December. To the right of the dirt, soon-to-be-paved road, can be seen the foundations of Princeton's new half-million-dollar YMCA-YWCA. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

ly to make up for the higher goal. He pointed out that "the $20,000 boost over last year is a large amount, but not if each subscriber realizes that if each business and individual will give a moderate increase, we can easily reach this goal." Mr. Sturkin gave this suggested reference table:

"If you have been contributing $15, increase to $18; $25, increase to $30; $50 to $58; $100 to $115, and so on. I am sure most of us can and want to do this," he said, "so let's put this campaign over the top."

TOP SCIENTISTS HERE

Thermomuclear Advance Cited. Significant progress toward harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb for industrial use was announced last week following a two-day closed meeting of American and British scientists at Princeton University. The advances in controlled thermomuclear research were reported in a joint statement by the representatives of the two nations.

The statement said that "reports in the meeting at Princeton on the temperatures reached in controlled thermomuclear experiments in the United Kingdom and the United States suggest the achievement of neutrons from thermomuclear reactions." It was pointed out that the production of such neutrons would be an important step in the long-range efforts to develop thermomuclear reactors for the production of economic power.

"More experimental work will be necessary" to establish that the neutrons actually came from the reaction, the statement cautioned. The scientists listed the two main conditions necessary for the attainment of power-producing reactions:

"First, heavy hydrogen must be heated to a temperature of at least one million degrees Centigrade. Second, this hot gas must be confined within a container for an appreciable fraction of a second. When the temperature reaches several million degrees Centigrade, neutrons will be emitted in large numbers."

VOTERS ALERTED

Special Election December 3. Princeton Township voters were advised this week by their Board of Education that a special election will be conducted Tuesday, December 3, to determine whether or not $26,000 should be transferred from the board's surplus funds account to its capital expense account. Board members, stressing that no new taxes will be needed, have urged authorization of the transfer to permit the acquisition of land on Riverside Drive as a potential school site.

Almost a year ago, the Township board contacted the State Department of Education and was advised that an 11-acre tract is the minimum size recommended if a school comparable to Littlebrook, the Township's newest educational facility, is to be erected in the near future. Thus, at last February's regular school election, —Continued on Page 12—

Parking Change Hill

To the Editor of Town Topics:
Who is responsible for forbidding parking on Washington Road? Is this the way to ease the town and university parking problem? That stretch of road was a great convenience for out-of-town people whose business takes them to the Firestone Library.

Could safety be the reason? Then why is meter parking permitted up to Williams Street? And why are official university cars still permitted to park opposite the W.W. building? Or are more meters to be installed? Heaven preserve us from those money-making calamity!

DAVID H. PAXTON

R.F.D. 2

(Ed. Note: Last spring, after conferring at length with University officials, Borough Council included the "no parking" provision for Washington Road south of Warkinton Creek in its Revised Park Ordinance. The move was made strictly for safety's sake, the firm belief being that parking along that section of Washington, which is narrow even on a slope, constituted a real danger for students, who crust the street at many spots and often darted out between parked cars. Needless to say, no meters will be installed south of William).

Against Civil Defense Test.

To the Editor of Town Topics:
In an article datelined Trenton, October 16, the New York Times today reports what to me is the latest news that New Jersey will conduct a statewide Civil Defense test on the day after this week's your paper reaches the stands. From radio station WOR I also learn that Governor Meyner and his staff will move to a secret location during this test.

May a citizen ask just who and in back of this plan? I am, I hope, sufficiently informed to realize that a part of our government's duty is to protect its people. Yet how responsible officials, officials presumably more familiar with the destructiveness of modern weapons than the layman, can still advocate Civil Defense exercises is hard to understand.

Ever since Norman Cousins wrote his little book Modern Man Is Obsolete describing the effects of the atomic bombing of Japanese cities — and this was ten years ago! — it has been apparent that the end of war is the only sure Civil Defense.

Would it not be better if New Jersey's leaders, rather than perpetuating the myth of Civilian Defense, would explain the awfulness of total war to their people and to support in every way the growing move for a durable peace?

That Civil Defense tests contribute to our safety or security is a deceptively dangerous notion; I urge your readers to reject it.

voters were asked to give and did vote approval of expenditure of $40,000 for purchase of the Riverside land.

Unfortunately, in negotiating for the two parcels constituting the Riverside site, the board was unable to reach a mutually agreeable price with the Hempstead Land & Realty Company for 8.6 acres. Condemnation proceedings were undertaken for this portion of the tract, and the "fair price" set by the court was $47,000.

An agreement to acquire the remaining portion of the proposed school tract, a 24-acre parcel owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, was reached some time ago—contingent on voter approval of the transfer of funds. The Clarkes will receive $14,400 for their acreage.

The board explained this week that legal fees, court costs and other miscellaneous costs—such as land surveys and appraisal fees—are expected to total approximately $14,600. Added to the figure for the Clarkes' property and the excess amount for the Hempstead land estimate brings the total in excess of the $40,000 originally appropriated to $54,600.

In urging voters to endorse the requested transfer of funds, the board emphasized that every study indicates a school will be needed in the Township's southeast corner in the foreseeable future—and this is the only tract of land in that area that is still available and suitable for school construction purposes. "The board, realizing that the availability of school land in several areas of the municipality is essential for the school system's orderly growth, has also taken steps to have a portion of the Johnson tract off Rosedale Road transferred to it by the Township Committee and is looking into sites in other sections."

Determination of the location, size and type of construction of the next school has not yet been made. Studies of all aspects of the problem are now being effected by the Board of Education and the Citizens' Advisory Committee to the New Buildings Committee. A new school by September, 1950, is considered a "must." The children for whom the additional classrooms will be needed are already here—additional preschool youngsters already here and living in the Township, and students already in the lower grades whose progress through the schools makes the addition of upper grade classrooms.

PRINCETON AT STANDSTILL

Civil Defense Instructions. Traffic will halt and all will take cover Friday when "Operation Checkpoint," a statewide Civil Defense exercises goes into effect. The precautionary drill will begin at 6:30 p.m. when wailing sirens sound "Alert."

At this time, instructions will be broadcast over all radio stations. "Two minutes later, the 'take cover' signal will be heard.

Automobile drivers will be required to leave their vehicles at curbside and seek indoor shelter. Pedestrians will similarly be asked to take cover by a corps of wardens, auxiliary police and Township and State Troopers.

According to Acting State Civil Defense Director Thomas S. Dignam, residents are urged to turn off all home appliances, gas burners and non-automatic water heaters. However, gas and electric meters should not be disturbed and pilot lights should remain burning.

Employees in all public buildings have been alerted to follow Civil Defense instructions. Hospitals, hotels, theatres and churches will be expected to cooperate. Factory workers are asked to "stop everything" for ten minutes following the 6:50 "take cover" siren. However, manufacturing processes which are halted for a few minutes should continue to operate. Telephones should not be used in case of emergency.

Wellesley Club Plans Lectures. French cooking will be thoroughly analyzed by a well-known food expert in a lecture series scheduled for January. Sponsored by the benefit committee of the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey, Mrs. Diane Lucas of New Jersey's famed Cordon Bleu will give three Wednesday evening lectures complete with demonstrations.

Mrs. Lucas will prepare several international gourmet delicacies before the eyes of those present at Miss Pine's School auditorium. Mrs. Bryce Maxwell and Mrs. Roy S. Vogt are co-chairmen of the sponsoring committee.

To Benefit the Blind. The annual benefit sale of articles made by the blind will hold on Tuesday, November 1, at 7 chambers Terrace from 10 to 4. Articles in the sale, which is held for the direction of the Commission for the Blind, are distributed by the East Orange division of the Workshop for the Blind.

All proceeds of the sale, sponsored by the Princeton Braillets, will go directly to the blind persons who contributed their handiwork. The sale, which realized $600 here last year, offers an opportunity to buy needed articles for the home as well as useful Christmas gifts.

"IT'S GOING TO BE ALL RIGHT!" Nurse Kathryn Sweeney smiles her reassurance to young Douglas Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas E. Stuart of 12 Pardee Road, who is uncertain about the future status of a cut in the leg. Douglas is one of the many Princetonians who are treated for minor injuries in the dispensary of Princeton Hospital. At right, the ambulance of Princeton's First Aid and Rescue Squad stops at the entrance to the dispensary with a seriously injured person. The dispensary is equipped to care for all types of emergencies, from a heart attack to a broken leg. In this picture, Thomas H. McGloakley and Albert Tate prepare to let down their stretcher and wheel it into the dispensary where a nurse is waiting.

IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

Sutures, Please. The siren whistles, the ambulance swings carefully but swiftly into Witherspoon Street on its way to the hospital. What is it this time, automobile accident? heart attack? a bad fall?

Accidents are on the permanent agenda at the Princeton Hospital dispensary and the nurses there are equipped to handle anything from a child's cut knee to a D.O.A. (dead-on-arrival) accident victim.

In the case of serious accident, a policeman at the scene calls the hospital and the switchboard operator tells the dispensary nurse to be prepared. Sometimes she knows what to expect—burns, lacerations or broken bones—sometimes she doesn't, but she knows the suture kit anyway while she waits because stitches are often in order. Plasma is on hand, too, because it may be needed quickly.

Meanwhile, the resident physician on duty has been notified too, and he or she heads for the dispensary to see what is involved.

(The nurse on duty always calls the victim's own doctor as soon as she knows who it is, because by law, the resident physician can only take care of the patient on the order of the patient's own doctor. If the person has no doctor in Princeton, the resident will take care of course take charge.)

This time, it's an automobile accident at 2 a.m. Sunday morning. A police car turns into the courtyard before the dispensary and two policemen climb out, escorting a ruffled individual who seems to be uncertain about his feet. The ambulance appears next. It backs to the entrance and its quick-footed squad members open the door, gently remove the stretcher and its load, and wheel it into the dispensary.

Quick Action. The resident doctor is on her way. The nurse on duty looks at the form on the stretcher. Severe head lacerations with bleeding from the main vessels. Nurse quickly clamps off the vessels to stop the bleeding and while she is doing so, the resident appears and soon, the victim's doctor.

It's the operating room for this case and within minutes, the closed darkened operating room has been opened up, lighted and made ready. The patient has been officially admitted to the hospital and is on his way upstairs for some intricate repair work that may even include emergency brain surgery.

Downstairs in the dispensary, the foggy gentleman in rumpled clothes is waiting for a drunkometer test. He makes some protestations of sobriety, but when he finally blows for the drinkometer and sees the fluid change to its

What to Do

Whenever anyone has a bad accident, like a fall from a roof or a cut that sends blood spurting from an artery, the first impulse of the onlooker is "call the hospital!"

Princeton Hospital, however, has no ambulance of its own and people who call the hospital are always referred to the police. Squad cars have basic first-aid equipment and police can give emergency care to an accident victim until the arrival of the First Aid and Rescue Squad with its ambulance and trained volunteers.

So, in case of serious accident:

1. Call the Borough or Township police and tell them what has happened and where. They will get the ambulance.
2. Call your doctor, if the accident is in your family, or call the doctor of the person who is injured. If you don't know what doctor to call, don't worry. The hospital will take care of this end of things.
3. Don't call the hospital.

tell-tale purple, he deflates like the balloon itself and shuffles off with the police to face his responsibility in this accident.

When immediate first-aid is obviously required, the nurse will use her own judgment about it, if the resident or the patient's doctor has not yet arrived. But the actual decision about treatment, emergency surgery or X-ray comes only from the doctor.

Fast first-aid by the ambulance crew is actually the first treatment that a seriously wounded person receives. Princeton nurses recall a 12-year-old girl who severed her jugular vein when she stumbled against a broken window. The girl lived in a town about half an hour's ride from Princeton Hospital and the ambulance crew that brought her in had only made the trip at sports-car speed but performed such miracles of first-aid en route that they literally saved the girl's life. In the dispensary, she was given plasma for shock and the final stitches for her cut. By the end of the day she was waving doctors not to letting her go home.

Although accidents usually come singly, there have been times when the dispensary has had to care for five or six persons at once. A bad automobile accident some months ago brought in five badly injured women and one who had died on the way to the hospital.

The dispensary has three stretchers all the time, with room for one more. There are also portable cots that can be set up in nearby clinic rooms if there are too many injured persons for the dispensary itself.

The tragic cases, of course, are the ones that come in D.O.A. They must be brought to the hospital as a matter of course even though they are obviously beyond medical care.

The nurse on duty then faces the poignant and heart-aching task of trying to convince a relative that the victim is really dead, and offering what small comfort and solace she can. Perhaps she will have to administer a sedative.

Relatives of badly-injured persons often need sedatives, too, and nurses have found that mothers of hurt children are especially likely to be upset. Often the nurse has to ask the mother to hold a frightened child while stitches are put into an open knee or lip, and in the fall there are always boys who break a bone playing kick ball or soccer and in winter we have elderly people who slip on the ice and suffer a fracture.

"We always know when spring is here," says one nurse, "because the baseball accidents begin then: a bat over somebody's temple or a ball that breaks a finger. When summer comes, we get bee stings and rusty nails in bare feet, and in the fall there are always boys who break a bone playing kick ball or soccer and in winter we have elderly people who slip on the ice and suffer a fracture."

Power Mowers Dangerous. The grisliest seasonal accidents come in the summer from power mowers. Anyone who thinks an experienced nurse is calloused should see the way she reacts to the man who comes in with two fingers missing and his hand mangled because he tried to adjust the blades of a lawn mower without turning the power off.

Most people who come to the dispensary are cared for and discharged. A limping boy with white face and wet eyes has broken a bone in his foot in a soccer game. His doctor argues for an X-ray and a so-called "wet reading" of the X-ray picture so that diagnosis can go a little faster. It's a break, all right, and the doctor is applied right in the dispensary and the boy sent home.

On a hot August day, a victim of heat prostration lies quietly on one of the dispensary's active beds. She may stay there until she feels well enough to go home. A tearful child who swallowed a whole bottle of aspirin tablets has been pumped in. He is now a lecture pumped in and the doctor is pumped in and the boy sent home.

The workman who caught a hunk of cement in his eye is examined in a hurry and sent off immediately to an eye specialist.

The mother and her two-minute-old baby are rushed from their car to the maternity ward (too babies have been born in the dispensary — yet!). The carpenter whose fall from scaffolding may have given him concussion is admitted to the hospital for a 24-hour period of observation. "It's the most interesting and exciting kind of hospital duty," one nurse says, and her colleagues agree. "You never know what's going to happen tomorrow — or today."

Why plan to vote REPUBLICAN DEMOCRATIC

By THOMAS M. ROWLAND

FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL

I plan to vote for the Republican candidates because I believe that previous and present Republican administrators have consistently planned a sound, forward looking policy for the residents of Princeton and have not allowed themselves to go off at tangents which, at the moment, may have been the easier roads to follow. I believe our acting mayor, Tristram H. Johnson, has through his continuous years of service on the Council gained the necessary experience and inclination necessary to continue these practices and that his guidance and leadership will be of great value to the other members of Borough Council.

He and the other Republican candidates for Borough Council positions were born and reared in Princeton and are thoroughly familiar with the needs and desires of Princeton residents. I also believe that our governing officers should be "on the spot" persons who will constantly get the feel of Princeton problems as they come up for solution, and who are available day, every day to the recommendations of Princeton people.

The reception of the desires of Princeton residents should not, in my opinion, be tinged by the political philosophy of the U. S. House in Trenton, nor should they be colored too much by pure theoretical government, but rather that they should be received and judged in the light of what is the practical solution that is best for Princeton.

I think the Princeton "Way of Life" is what makes all of us want to live here. Certainly that was one of the factors in my decision to come here 23 years ago. Previous and present Republican council members have zealously tried to "Keep Princeton, Princeton" and I plan to vote for a continuation of that policy.

FOR TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE

By INNOCENT VENTURA

I am going to vote Republican because:

In my opinion, the Republican Committeemen have done an excellent job in the past, and show every indication of carrying on along the same lines in the future.

I am proud to live in a community where scandals have never rocked the scene, where municipal services usual to a township—police protection, snow removal, etc.—are capably handled.

I am likewise proud to be a part of a community in which minority groups are so well represented in positions of responsibility. Princeton Township, like many another community has its problems, but I like the forthrightness with which these are met. It takes courage sometimes to meet a problem head-on, but I have noted no lack of this courage on the part of our committeemen. And I believe B. Kenneth F. Man and Stanley C. Smoyer are both men of this caliber, and will continue to meet our problems wisely, and with courage.

Question on the Ballot

Residents of New Jersey will have an opportunity on Election Day to increase the number of eligible voters and possibly prevent themselves from becoming disenfranchised in the future.

A public question will seek approval of a law changing the length of residential requirements for voting. The present one-year minimum residence in the State will be reduced to six months if the referendum is approved, while the length of time one must live in the same county will be lowered from five months to 60 days.

By GORDON WALGREN

FOR BOROUGH COUNCIL

I look forward to voting Democratic this year for a number of reasons.

First, the three candidates for Borough office possess strong native talent and have been highly successful in their business and professional pursuits. Ray Male, candidate for Mayor, and Dick Lester, also a candidate for Council, have previously served well on the Borough Council. Dick Lester, also a candidate for Council has had wide and varied experience in public administration.

These men seek Borough office out of an honest and sincere desire to serve the community in which they live. Most important, they are alert to municipal needs and will bring each problem before the public so that the voice of the people will extend the democratic principle into actual practice here in Princeton.

As a community, we are currently suffering from effects of the avoidance of problems by past administrations because of a lack of open discussion or just plain failure to face the facts of growth and change. Not too long ago the slogan "Keep Princeton Princeton" was used by the incumbent party during a political campaign. I've often thought that if the local Democratic candidates felt the need of a "slogan" this year it would be "Make Princeton Better!"

It is noteworthy that through the device of a public opinion poll and a "symposium," the opposition now goes on at great length about its new awakening to the problems confronting Princeton. Their plea for our support would be more logical if they had done something constructive to build a record of accomplishment during their many years in control of Borough Government.

At the state level, I enthusiastically endorse the return to office of Robert B. Meyner. His opponent seems fearful of facing the fiscal facts of life and follows the same "deferred payment plan" that has proven so costly and wasteful at the local level. Governor Meyner has already carved a dignified station for our State in the federal family, and another term of his guidance would, I think, benefit New Jersey. Since his policies have begun to take effect, I have been prouder than ever of my residence in this state.

FOR TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE

By STEVE M. SLAY

I plan to vote for James W. Ford and William W. Man because we need harmonious, constructive criticism. Only through differences of opinion can the best answers be found. Two glaring examples of one-party thinking come quickly to mind—one concerned with our future, the other with the present.

First, the mad rush to the 1965 assessment, long before the required deadline. Farmland and woodland is now assessed at the highest value for which it might be sold. This figure is the speculative value for residential purposes which, of course, drives up the taxes on life lands—properties now not costing anything in school expenditures for the greater part of our total tax bill.

Many landowners, unable to pay these higher taxes, will sell. The buyers will necessarily build homes, creating the need for more school space, consequently still higher taxes (the tax rate in an expanding residential community does not keep up with school capital cost). The effects of this vicious circle might have been relieved, had there been an official voice that suggested waiting for the deadline, and using the time to try to avoid this forced development.

The second example involves putting first things first. A visitor to Township Hall will deny the desirability of the new parking lot. But, any runner of the Valley Road gauntlet during school hours sees the absolute

The New Jersey Poll

MEYNER'S LEAD MOVES UP BY 1% IN PAST 5 WEEKS, LATEST POLL INDICATES

Results of the third "trial heat" of voter preference by Princeton Research Service's New Jersey Poll completed last week show Democratic candidate Robert B. Meyner running ahead of Republican candidate Malcolm S. Forbes by a margin of 6%.

It must be understood that today's Poll findings reflect only current sentiment up to October 17 and don't necessarily happen during the next few days.

When New Jersey Poll staff reporters personally asked a representative cross-section of the state's voters:

"This November, New Jersey voters will elect a governor. If the election were held today, how would you probably vote for the Republican candidate Forbes or the Democratic candidate Meyner?"

The results:
Meyner 49%
Forbes 43%
Undecided 8%

The September 19 New Jersey Poll results on the same question showed Meyner with 47% of the vote, Forbes with 42%, and 11% undecided. In other words, over the past five weeks, Meyner has gained 2%; Forbes with 1% and the undecided vote has been reduced 3%. Statistically, these gains are still relatively minor and it's still up to the voters who are still on the fence.

Princeton Research has now made three "trial heat" election Polls. The June 6 New Jersey Poll results showed Meyner with 46%; Forbes with 42%, and 12% undecided.

With the campaign now in its final days, today's results in the light of the findings reveal a number of facts that should be kept in mind by all those following the New Jersey Poll gubernatorial election findings.

1. In none of the three "trial heat" elections has either candidate had 51% of the New Jersey voters safely in his camp.

2. The "undecided" vote in the three "trial heat" elections has been larger than the New Jersey Poll has found in "trial heat" elections made over the past ten years.

3. All sampling results are subject to a margin of error normally 4%.

4. The New Jersey Poll is still finding that a poorly number of people who say they would vote a certain way today, but that they still may change their minds. (The New Jersey Poll has never experienced this in previous election over the past 10 years.)

5. The odds generally favor the candidate in the lead.

6. Obviously, the party that can get out the larger number of its supporters will win, since not all the people who say they will vote, will go to the Polls.

An interesting sidelight in today's survey is that four years ago at this time, the New Jersey Poll showed Meyner leading Tronst by a very narrow margin; Meyner had 48.2%, Tronst, 46.9%; Ryan, 4.2%, and only .7% undecided.

Governor Meyner went on to win with 53.6% of the major vote to 45.1% for Republican Tronst, to 1.3% for the Independent candidate, the late Glenndon Ryan. In other words, Meyner won with a margin of 8.5% over Republican Tronst in 1953.

The New Jersey Poll correctly indicated a Meyner victory in its final prediction. Another survey now in the field will be reported next Thursday.

Gov. Tronst presents the results of the New Jersey Poll exclusively in this area.

HOPING FOR VOTE—AS WELL AS COFFEE—POUR OUT: As the 1957 day of election drew closer and closer, Republicans and Democrats alike this week campaigned harder and harder. There were "coffee hours" for both parties practically on the hour. Here, at a typical Princeton gathering, GOP candidates are found exchanging ideas and discussing issues with some of their distaff supporters. Included in the group are (left to right) Mrs. William A. B. Stokes, president of the Women's Republican Club of Princeton; Mrs. George Canover; Fred Van Dventer, State Senate aspirant from Mercer County; Stanley C. Smoyer, candidate for Princeton Township Committee; Mrs. Leon Heuser, coordinator of the GOP "coffee hour" program; R. Kenneth Fairman, Township Committee hopeful; and (pouring) Mrs. William French. (Town Topics Photo by Alan Richards)

Absentee Voting

Any properly registered voter who expects to be absent from the state on election day should apply in person or in writing for an absentee ballot to the county clerk for state, county and local elections. The advice, issued by the League of Women Voters of the Princeton Community, also applies to a person who because of illness or physical disability will be unable to cast a ballot at the polling place.

The League has also reminded that any person on active military service or who is confined to a veteran's hospital may apply by mail for a military service ballot, if he is qualified to register. As an alternative, a friend or member of his family may make application for him at the county clerk's office and a ballot will be mailed to him with full instructions.

The applicant must state his home address, the address to which the ballot should be sent and the reason why he will be unable to vote at his usual polling place. All applications must be signed and delivered by October 28, preceding the election on November 5.

necessity for sidewalks there. The parking-lot money should have been used for inexpensive black-top sidewalks (or footpaths) in areas where there are concentrations of school children. Being for the safety of all our children, these sidewalks should not be assessed against the abutting property owners.

The Republicans say their "survey" makes them concerned about traffic, but as we still see school children walking in a major artery, it doesn't seem as if there is much concern about safety. And so, among the reasons why I am voting for Bill Marvel and Jim Foley is the fact that the Republicans talk about—but don't GHOSTS, GOBLINS AND IMAGINATION: Sharon Craig, at left, assumes the guise of a goblin come to invite the Trick-or-Treat set to ghost-like fun and adventure, looking forward to Hallowe'en next Thursday. John Fenn might give the impression that a pumpkin is nothing but a pumpkin, but he has his Hallowe'en costume all planned. Sharon and John are seventh-grade pupils at the Quarry School.

Question of the Week

Question: How and as whom will you celebrate Hallowe'en?

Location: Seventh Grade at the Quarry Street School.

Edward Story, Edgemere Avenue, Plainsboro: I'm going to "trick or treat" with a church group in Kingston. We're going to send the money we get to the United Nations Children's Emergency Fund. I don't know yet what I will dress like, but I always get inspired about the day before Hallowe'en. Last year, mom helped me dress like a scarecrow, with straw sticking out all over and a stuffed bird attached to my clothes.

Sharon Craig, 184 Witherspoon Street: I'm not sure yet, but some of my girl friends and I think we'll go out dressed alike. Last year my cousin and I went out as princesses, and we were really "treated" well. This year we'll probably wear blue jeans, red shirts and masks—something easier to get around in.

John Bailey, 2 College Road: I'm going to a party so I won't trick or treat, but I plan to scare a few people with my Dragnet-type costume. I don't feel it's worth it to buy a costume and then a bought costume doesn't mean as much as one you got up yourself. I've got a trench coat and a hat of Dad's. I'll pull the collar up and the brim down and be a Dragnet character.

Marty Craig, 89 Mercer Street: I don't know whether I'll be able to do it, but I want to be a green giant—like, the one on the pea can. I can't stand peas, but when I started to think about a costume the picture of the giant came into my head. In the past, most of the tricks I've played have been on my parents—it's safer that way. This year I think I'll trick 'em all if they don't treat me.

John Fenn, Brunswick Pike near the Forrestal Center: I'll be in a hobo suit. You know, torn clothes and stuff. Just old things that I've accumulated. Most of them are Dad's and just kind of hang on me. I don't care if I get a lot of treats—I'd rather trick.

Christine Davies, 30 College Road: I'm going with three girl friends as "Rub-a-Dub-Dub, Three Men in a Tub." I'm the candle-stick-maker, and the other two are the butcher and the baker. I'll carry a candle, but I'm still trying to figure out what the rest of the costume will be. We won't be in a real tub. We're going to try to make a fake one out of paper.

David Redding, 39 Linden Lane: I guess I won't dress up. My parents got too many reports last year that I tricked a lot more than I treated, so I don't think they're going to let me go out. The guys and I never do dress up much. You don't have to.

Deborah Abrams, 35 University Place: I'm thinking about being a Ginny doll. I will dress up like a girl about 2 or 3 years old, with a short skirt, a big bow in my hair and a big bow at my back. Last year I was a hobo and put my hair up under a hat.

SOLOIST: William Masseles will be the piano soloist in the presentation Monday, November 4, by the Princeton Symphony Orchestra of Chopin's Concerto in F Minor.

MUSIC In Princeton

PRINCETON SYMPHONY

Masseles as Soloist, Chopin's concerto for piano and orchestra in F minor with William Masseles as soloist will open the season for the Princeton Symphony Orchestra on Monday, November 4, at McCarter Theatre. The concert marks the start of the Symphony's seventh season.

The director, Nicholas Harsanyi, this season has been named director of the Colonial Little Symphony. He also is conductor of the New Chamber Orchestra of Philadelphia.

Mr. Masseles took seriously to the piano at the age of five and one-half, and had given three concerts by the time he was nine. He received all of his musical training at the Juilliard School of Music.

In spite of the childhood concerts, Mr. Masseles considers that his real piano debut was made at the age of 18. He now has two Carnegie Hall recitals to his credit, and is a recording artist for MGM Records. The 1947 winner of the National Federation of Music's $1,000 award, he has been piano instructor in residence at Indiana University for a year.

Mr. Masseles has performed frequently in Princeton. In 1948 he did an "experimental" program at Proctor Hall and played in the 1954-55 McCarter Series. Last spring he was a member of a trio performing at McCarter.

This Friday, he will give the first performance of Aaron Copland's "Piano Fantasy" in New York. The work was commissioned by Juilliard for its 50th anniversary, and is dedicated to the memory of William Kapell. The young pianist is well-known for his interest in contemporary music. He describes one of his Carnegie Hall concerts as "half-in-half, or two-in-one concert," because the first half of the program was completely modern, and the second composed of standard repertoire.

DUET TEAM: The Misses Doris Martin and Martha Braden of Westminster Choir College, who will play two pianos in a concert for children Saturday. The event will be open only to those from 6 to 13.

Benny Goodman will be the soloist for the January 27 concert of the Princeton Symphony, performing the concerto for clarinet by Aaron Copland. On April 14, Eda Zaitsevsky, violinist, and David Weiss, cellist, will play Brahms' double concerto.

CHILDREN'S "PIANO PARTY"

Martin & Braden to Play. Saint-Saens' "Carnival of the Animals" will be the highlight of the first "piano party" of the season at Westminster Choir College. Miss Doris Martin and Miss Martha Braden will play the two pianos, and Marvin Baldwin will narrate Opden Nash's poems. The other musical selections have been chosen from the classic and modern piano repertoire and will include a Mozart rondo; a group of dances by Brahms, Chopin and Milhaud; and Bizet's "Children's Games," and "Puppet Pieces" by Casella. Most of the music has either been written for children or has special appeal for children.

The "piano party" is being given by the children studying piano in the piano preparatory department at the Choir College. The students, who are 13 years of age or younger and number more than 60, are inviting all the children of Princeton between the ages of six and 13 to be their guests. There is no admission charge.

The concert will start at 1 on Saturday, in the Playhouse on the Choir College campus, and will be over at 2. No one over 13 will be admitted.

The three performers hold teaching fellowships at Westminster Choir College. Miss Braden and Miss Martin have already given several piano-duo concerts in Princeton, and will this winter play for children in a number of cities in the United States.

FOLK SONG ARTISTS

Josh White to Appear. Cancelled out of the Princeton musical scene last weekend by the flu epidemic, the town's newest concert series, Folk Song Artists, will return this weekend with two performances by Josh White, one of the finest folk singers of our time. Mr. White will perform at midnight Friday and 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Murray Theatre on the University campus, offering a varied program that features his unique guitar style and his famous interpretations of ballads, blues, work songs, spirituals and protest songs.

Tickets for the concerts, priced at $1.45 and $1.65, are now on sale at the University Store and Princeton Music Center, and also may be reserved by telephoning Princeton 1-5414. As in the case of each presentation of the Folk Song Artists series, Mr. White's appearance will be made possible under the auspices of Princeton University's Theatre Intime.

Josh White's artistry combines a stirring and dramatic blend of traditional strains with his own original conceptions and urban sophistication. Now celebrating his 26th year as a recording artist, radio, TV and night club star, Josh's work has flowed from that boldness well into musical inspiration, the American folk song and the Negro blues.

Richard A. Lukins, producer of the Folk Song Artists at Princeton series which opened with The Tarriers two weeks ago, announced that Josh's singing and recording companion, Sam Gray, will perform with his colleague at the two Murray concerts. A powerful bass, Mr. Gray is heard with Josh on a recent record album, "Josh at Midnight."

Starting his career as a singer of spirituals, Josh moved on to the blues and other secular forms of music. In the 1940's he built up a following in Greenwich Village, and then in the smart east side supper clubs of New York, including Cafe Society and the Blue Angel. From there, he went to more recordings and national as well as worldwide concert tours which still occupy the major portion of his time.

AMERICA PAST AND PRESENT: Princeton University's "Virginia Exhibition," commemorating the 350th anniversary of the first permanent English settlement at Jamestown and the visit of Queen Elizabeth II to the colony named for her predecessor, Elizabeth I, Regina Virginiae, is proving invaluable to the community's students of American history. Here seven seventh graders from the Witherspoon School, (left to right) Linda McDonough, Susan Hagadorn, Nancy Dicke, Janice Young, Jean Outhie, Carolyn Pace, and Jane Watson, are studying one of the exhibition cases in the University Library. The display will be open to the public daily through November.

IN BYGONE DAYS

"Virginia Impartially Examined," an eye-witness account of a wreck in 1609 is part of the Firestone Library's current large exhibit, "Virginia impartially examined and left to public view."

The report was written by William Strachey who resided at Jamestown as secretary of the struggling colony in 1610 and 1611. It is called "A true report of the wreck, and redemption of Sir Thomas Gates, Knight; upon, and from the lands of the Bermudas." The account of the wreck in 1609 of the "Sea Venture," bound for Virginia, is believed by many scholars to have provided the background for Shakespeare's comedy, "The Tempest" (1611).

Howard C. Rise, chief of the department of rare books and special collections points out that although the Library has no intention of entering the scholarly debate on Shakespearean sources, it has included in the exhibition its copy of the 1923 "First Folio" edition of Shakespeare's plays in which "The Tempest" first appeared in print. The copy is a reminder that the beginnings of Virginia and English America were contemporary with the writing of Shakespeare's plays.

The exhibit is held in celebration of the 350th anniversary of the first permanent English settlement at Jamestown and the recent visit of Queen Elizabeth II to the colony named for her predecessor, Elizabeth I, "Regina Virginiae." It has taken its title from a pamphlet published by William Bullock in 1649 in London.

The exhibition utilizes first editions, manuscripts and maps, including surveys of Virginia chronologically from the late 1500's to the early 1800's. Washington is represented by his manuscript surveys of Virginia lands made in 1750 and by "The Journal of Major George Washington, sent by the Hon. Robert Dinwiddie, Esq.; His Majesty's Lieutenant Governor, and commander in chief of Virginia, to the commandant of the French forces on Ohio."

One of the hundreds of notable items on display is the map on which the name "Virginia" appears for the first time. That is a map of the world made by Francis Gaule, engraved in Paris in 1587 for Richard Hakluyt's new edition of Peter Martyr's famous "De Orbe Novo."

Contemporary accounts provide vivid records of the first heroic but unsuccessful attempts to found a colony centering about Roanoke Island. These were made in the 1580's under the auspices of Sir Walter Raleigh. This area is illustrated by John White's map of "Virginia" (the coastlands between the present Cape Lookout in North Carolina and Chesapeake Bay), engraved in 1590 and the first map of the region based on accurate surveys.

A full series of works by Captain John Smith are included in the exhibit. They include "A true relation" from 1608 and "The general historie of Virginia, New-England and the Summer Isles" from 1624. One of several well-preserved copies of the latter is the copy once owned by the Duchess of Richmond, to whom Smith dedicated the work as one of his chief sponsors.

The exhibition, which includes a section devoted to showing the long-standing connections between Virginia and Nassau Hall, will remain on public display through November. The gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 2 to 5 Sunday afternoons.

Tribute to Priests. The priests of St. Paul's parish will be honored at a buffet supper planned for Sunday, November 24, by the Princeton Knights of Columbus, Council 636. The event, which will be held at 6 p.m. in the cafeteria of the St. Paul's School, will particularly mark the 20th anniversary of Father Edward Henry's ordination to the priesthood.

All members of the parish are invited to attend. James B. Kannan, chairman of the program committee, and his committee are distributing tickets, priced at $2.50 for adults, with a special children's price. George Wood, Thomas Moran Jr. and Martin Reed have arranged music and entertainment to follow the buffet.

Rural Carrier Exam Scheduled. Applications are now being received for the position of rural mail carrier for the Princeton Post Office. Examination forms must be in the hands of the U. S. Civil Service Commission at Washington 25, D. C. no later than Saturday, November 12.

Applicants for the exam must have resided within the delivery zone since last November and must be 18 years of age. There is no maximum age limit but those over 70 may be considered only for a temporary appointment.

Complete information may be obtained at the Post Office. Application forms are also available.

Save Those Pie Plates. Empty aluminum pie plates, used to hold frozen pies, are in demand these days. Members of the Christmas party committee at the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute hope to assemble enough to adorn outdoor yule trees.

The committee, which has already begun to fashion ornaments from the silvery disks, especially need small size plates. Contributions should be sent to, Mrs. —Continued on Page 20

OF PRINCETON AND RUTGERS: When two Rutgers English professors took leave this fall to pursue fellowship grant studies, Dr. Milton J. French (left), head of the Rutgers English Department, "borrowed" the part-time services of two professors from the same department at Princeton University. Dr. Richard P. Blackmur, (center) and Dr. Charles T. Davis are the two Princeton professors who are doing part-time duty at the state university for 1957-58. For other details see story below.

CASE OF SPLIT ALLEGIANCE

Princetonians Aid at Rutgers
A pair of Princeton University professors are dividing teaching assignments this fall by serving part of the term at Rutgers. The unusual collaboration between New Jersey's sister institutions has been effected by Professors Richard P. Blackmur and Charles T. Davis.

Both men, who are replacing members of the Rutgers faculty on leave of absence, will maintain full schedules at Princeton. But several times a week, they will drive to New Brunswick to direct graduate English courses.

A well-known poet, critic and long time member of the Department of English, Prof. Blackmur has launched a graduate study in the history of literary criticism. While completing his tenth year, he will fill in for Dr. Francis Ferguson who is using a fellowship to prepare a book on Shakespeare.

Dr. Blackmur will hold the title of Rutgers University Lecturer in literary criticism. A full professor at Princeton since 1951, he has written seven books and critical essays.

Also participating in the faculty exchange is Dr. Davis, who has been at Princeton since 1955. He is teaching a graduate course in Poe, Hawthorne and Melville as a visiting lecture in English at Rutgers.

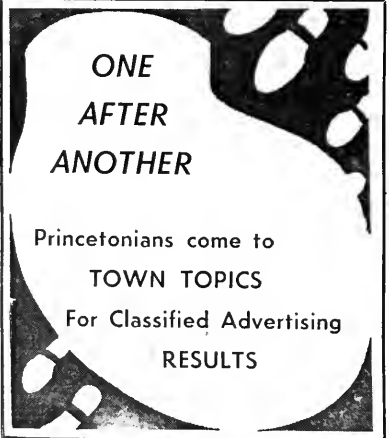

Dr. Davis temporarily replaces Dr. Walter E. Bezanson, an associate professor of American civilization now lecturing in Belgium under a Fulbright grant. A 1939 alumnus of Dartmouth, Dr. Davis earned his doctorate at New York University.

Borough P.T.A. Reception. The Borough Parent-Teacher Association will hold a reception Monday at 8:15 p.m. for parents of all new students of the Nassau and Quarry Street Schools. Chester Stroup and Howard Waxwood, principals of the two schools, will be on hand at the Quarry Street building to answer questions.

Teachers and other administration officials will also be present. Refreshments will be served.

Music In Princeton

Producer Lukins said this week-end's programs will feature Josh's most noted interpretations, including such favorites as "Josh Henry," "Strange Fruit," "St. James Infirmary," "One Meat Ball," "Jelly, Jelly!," "Jim Crow Train," "Midnight Special" and "Raise A Ruckus." Riverside Records, one of the leading record companies in the folk music field, may come to Princeton to produce at least one L.P. album from recordings of the actual Murray performances, Mr. Lukins announced.

GERMAN SINGER OUT

Warfield Coming Instead. The first concert in series II of the Princeton University Concerts will take place two weeks later than originally announced. The outstanding German singer, Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau, who was to have appeared on Monday, has been forced by illness to cancel his American tour.

In his place, the concert committee has been able to secure an appearance by the American baritone, William Warfield, on Monday, November 11 at 8:30 p.m. in the McCarter Theatre. All tickets dated October 28 will be honored at the concert on November 11.

William Warfield, who has been called one of the greatest baritones of this generation by many critics, was born in Arkansas but moved to Rochester as a small child. He was a boy soprano who began vocal studies after his voice changed to baritone. He appeared in "Call Me Mister," "Set My People Free," "Showboat," "Green Pastures," "The Rake's Progress" and many other shows and has toured the world with "Torgy and Bess." During the first ten weeks of 1958 he will tour a large number of Far Eastern countries for the State Department.

As a lieder singer, Warfield is ranked at the very top along with Fischer-Dieskau. This is best illustrated by his reception by the Berlin critics last year which included such praise as "He sang so brilliantly that this listener had to hold his breath. His rare versatility and beautiful voice obviously have no limits."

His program here will include Schumann's "Dichter-Lieder," Faure's "L'Horizon chimérique," and "Vier ernste Gesänge" by Brahms. Tickets for the concert are on sale at the University Store, and can be purchased at the box office of McCarter on the evening of the recital.

BAM'S SURVEY
To Match "Going Rate." In an effort to match the "going rate" of employee salaries in comparable businesses, Bamberg's Department Store this week is completing a thorough wage and salary administration survey in Princeton. Records taken from various other companies will be assembled, collated and no doubt used as a yardstick in determining future salary scales at Bam's branch here.

A Bam's official in Newark, in charge of conducting the Princeton survey, said 16 firms with payrolls of suitable size were contacted and 11 of these—"a good number" to enable proper estimates—agreed to take part. Eight companies have finished their part in the study and, as soon as the final three have tallied up their findings, Bam's will go to work and figure out what kind of pattern is set by all of them together.

Stressing that the methods used represent "a recognized type of survey," the Bam's spokesman pointed out that it is a project in which all the participants will see the results. "Already most of the participating companies have expressed their appreciation of the survey technique employed," he commented, "and they have asked for the information we will obtain from the survey."

The jobs inquired about in the study, he explained, are known in the trade as "key" jobs, i.e., jobs with general applicability in different fields—such as "clerk, junior grade." All participants will remain anonymous, he added.

WHOPPING SUCCESS

RCA Entertains 5,000. A registered total of 4,997 registered visitors—"and mostly enough to registered guests to push the total above 5,000"—attended the three-night "open house" conducted by RCA Laboratories, at the David Sarnoff Research Center last week. During three hours each evening, halls on four levels of the huge RCA building at Penns Neck were jammed with people moving at rapid clip to take in the innumerable exhibits.

The visitors, most of them from Princeton, saw displays of many new RCA products and heard experts describe how they were developed through research and how they are benefitting or soon will benefit the general public. Highlights of the varied exhibition were RCA advancements in color television (with stereophonic sound), hi-fidelity, "monophonic" machines and electronic instruments of incredible scope and ability.

Byrli Hoyer served as chairman of the "open house" committee, which provided cake, ice cream, soft drinks and coffee by the truckload for everyone in attendance. Included among the guests, who called the event a success of great magnitude, were some 350 members and friends of the Princeton Business Association.

WORK UNDERWAY

Shady Brook Subdivision. Road construction was begun this week in the Shady Brook area where the Princeton Construction Company will erect 164 homes on 4-acre plots. The new section is adjacent to the area where the company erected 60 houses several years ago.

The new road will extend from the westerly end of Shady Brook Lane to the easterly end of Overbrook Drive. The property, which was formerly owned by the Gulick Estate, consists of 170 acres extending from Fox and Littlebrook Roads in a northerly direction to Herrontown Road.

Walter L. Shultis of the Shultis Agency, 173 Nassau Street, reported that models of the houses, which will range in price from $30,000 to $40,000, will be begun in the next two weeks and completed in about three months.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Ralph D. Hult has been elected president of the board of directors of the Nassau Savings and Loan Association, filling the vacancy created by the death of David S. Lloyd Jr. R. Brecht Knibbe was elected to the office of vice-president vacated by Mr. Hult, who became the fourth president of the association since it was incorporated in 1924.

George F. Blasius, chairman of the board and treasurer of Gary Chemicals Inc., president at the official opening of the company's new $1,500,000 Polyvinyl Chloride Resin plant at Flemington last month. Formerly a resident of Mahwah and now residing at 206 State Road, Mr. Blasius has been actively engaged in the chemical industry for many years.

Joan Ogden, who taught last year at the University of Missouri and currently is working on her Ph.D. dissertation, has been employed as secretary of the Princeton Business Association. She succeeds John W. Thompson, forced to give up the position due to illness. Miss Ogden, whose family resides in Nehalem, will work for the PEA on a part-time basis.

THERE SHOULD HAVE BEEN A FEW CARBON COPIES: If Princeton's football team could have provided a few more huge holes like this one as its backs neared the Colgate goal line, Saturday's game would have had a happier ending. Here, tailback Tom Morris goes through a big gap at right guard to give Tigers their only touchdown of the day in 12-10 defeat.

SPORTS In Princeton

BACK TO THE IVY RACE

Cornell Here Saturday at 2. After stepping out of the Ivy League into a totally unexpected hornet's nest last weekend, Princeton will resume its quest for the 1957 championship Saturday when Cornell comes to Palmer Stadium for the first time in three seasons. The kickoff is set for 2 p.m.

Having been dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten by Colgate as shattering a form reversal as the Tigers have displayed in a number of seasons, they will be out to prove that pre-season ratings giving them a shot at first place were not grossly in error. Off their respective games against the Red Raiders, there is virtually nothing to choose between Cornell and Princeton. The Ithacans dropped their opener in the final minute by one point (14-13), while the Tigers were upended by the same poison Ivy contingent in the final two minutes last Saturday, 12 to 10.

Although it has won but one game in each of the last two seasons, Cornell comes to the Stadium as a dangerous foe and in particular, one that almost invariably forces the Tigers to score heavily if they are to win. For example, not since they were blanked 27-0 in 1952 have the Ithacans failed to score at least three touchdowns against the Tigers. They won the following two seasons with four each year, and in 1955 and '56, they lost by respective margins of 26-20 and 32-21.

Here and there in its last two unsatisfactory performances, the Princeton squad has given signs that it will become welded into an outfit capable of running up a sizeable number of points against typical Ivy opposition. Holding only Harvard of its first four foes to less than a pair of touchdowns, Cornell is not a team geared to pare the Tigers down if they are able to realize on their potential.

ily to the outside—is Cornell's basic asset. The Red keeps the opposition "honored" with an occasional shot through the middle, but even its fullbacks will try to turn the flanks.

Bob McNiff is the visitor's most consistent halfback, with Irving "Bo" Roberson, fastest man in the Ivy League, the most dangerous. Roberson, however, has not been benefited by either smart quarterbacking or good blocking, and last week was debilitated with a total of minus 25 yards for his half dozen carries.

Bob Skynpeck runs the Cornell split T, which often uses two flankers beyond the ends. Sophomore Phil Taylor was a 60-minute fullback against Yale, but will share the duties this week with Bob Hazard, who is set to return to action after an injury in the opener shelved him.

Up front, tackle Rog Garrett is probably the standout, but there is considerable inexperience in the interior of the Cornell forward wall. The Ithacans are not a tightball team, and entering the game as they will with a 2-11 record over two seasons, morale can hardly be high. It is readily apparent that if the Tigers stall and sputter against them, hopes of playing Yale and Dartmouth on anything like even terms next month can be stifled in mothballs.

Injuries Have Hurt. While Princeton has been somewhat less hampered than other colleges by the "respiratory ailments" that have been sidelining players this fall, it is doubtful if any of its 1957 opponents have had key personnel miss as much time through injuries. The same four players have never started in the backfield, and such highly valuable men as tailback Tom Morris, Captain Jack Sapoch, fullback Hewes

Agnew and sophomores Dan Sachs and Mike Apollito have missed whole games because of injuries—all of them, with the exception of Morris—to their ankles or legs.

It is lack of practice time that has largely been responsible for the team's inconsistent showing, a statement all too thoroughly proved by the 19 fumbles charged to Princeton in its first four games. Backs who have been hit steadily in scrimmage and worked together constantly simply do not drop the ball as often as the Tigers have to date.

EDGAR RIDDICK
Princeton High Tailback

down the Tornadoes' ground attack.

On offense, Riddick really stole the show. He carried the ball on 99% of the plays, and a hand in both of Princeton's touchdowns.

It was just a year ago that Edgar Riddick, Princeton High School's '56 tailback, was selected for most of the important game with Trenton High due to an injury. The key performer in Coach Joe Jingo's single-wing scheme was permitted only to kick the ball as the Little Tigers absorbed a 20-9 trouncing.

Last Friday, with the rain pouring and the aptly named Tornadoes ahead, 7-0, brother Edgar Riddick, Princeton's '57 tailback, staggered off the field following a second-quarter defensive collision with PHS Co-Captain Vic Fasanella. A fine first-period punt by this 18-year-old successor to the Riddick crown had removed the Blue and White from a deep hole, but it looked as though Edgar might not be around even for booting chores in the last half. Trenton's bones soared.

The Riddicks are made of pretty sturdy stock apparently, and Edgar emerged from his temporary daze after the intermission rest period. During the next 24 minutes, in the words of PHS Coach Joe Jingo, "Riddick played the best game he has ever played for us." Never much of a pass defuser, the 5-foot 8-inch, 165-pound Little Tiger tailback more than atoned for this incident by tackling hard and helping markedly in slowing them to date, they can progress at a rate adequate to assure a bid for top honors.

LITTLE TIGERS ROLL

Win Second, Seek Third. "If we could only stop being a one-half ball team and put together two good halves, I'd feel a lot better about the road ahead," Joe Jingo mused this week. The affable Princeton High football coach was thinking about his eleven's last two performances, the first a one-touchdown victory over Hamilton High and the second — last Friday afternoon — a dispiriting conquest of Trenton High. In both instances, PHS played well for half a game and barely managed to avert disaster during the other half.

The Little Tigers will meet winless Trenton Catholic at 3:15 p.m. this Friday on Harris Field and will be slight favorites to register their third straight intra-county triumph. Catholic tied Hamilton's Hornets, 7-7, last Saturday, so PHS must be given the nod on the basis of its shutout success against Hamilton. But, as Jingo observed in continuing his comments, "Trenton Catholic is always tough opposition for us — and we may not be as lucky as we have been if we can't play consistently good ball throughout the game."

Statistically, the Tornadoes outplayed the visitors from Trenton last Friday as rain and a determined PHS club dampened THS' 1957 home run. They recorded 11 first downs to the Blue and White's five, they gained 70 yards rushing to Princeton's 63 and they were almost even in the passing department, completing three of seven for 44 yards as opposed to Trenton's 1-27.

Last week, you could get any number of different reasons for Colgate's ability to push two TD's across in the final period. The inevitable, irritated comments rang from criticism of the field goal attempts so early in the game to the opinion that less frequent planning of substitutes would have let one of the Tigers' units "get hot and stay that way."

At his weekly Sunday press conference, acting head coach Dick Colman was quick to admit that "we made too many defensive mistakes in the final quarter." He also felt that Colgate profited by its ability to turn Princeton back, from a number of scoring threats, and the fact that it was within 10 points when the final period began gave it a tremendous lift in morale. The visitors then caught fire, and when their second TD came with 2:06 to go, it left inadequate time to retaliate.

If it was an intangible in the form of spirit that fused Colgate, old figures underscore the intensity of the upset. To begin with, the Red Raiders came into the game after having been whipped by Illinois and Rutgers to a combined tune of 88 to 6.

Then, they made one first down and gained a total of 28 yards in the first half, and did not even cross midfield until late in the third period. Even after they had rolled 54 and 45 yards for the winning touchdowns, they were still outgained almost 2 to 1. Princeton, however, lacked a scoring punch in woeful fashion—running 13 plays from inside the ten-yard line in the first half and having only three points to show for them.

As often happens in a close game, a touchdown that gave the Tigers' favor was called back by a penalty. Hewes Agnew went over from the one yard line in the second period but his timing was off from lack of practice, and he was in motion well before the ball was snapped.

The Tigers' two scores came on a 26-yard field goal by Alan Manizer and a four-yard thrust through guard by Tom Morris. Morris, who had the misfortune to fumble three times during the afternoon, dropped this one, too, but after he had hit the end zone and it did not count.

In the second half, two more fumbles and two interceptions took care of all Princeton scoring threats. Even a ten-point lead seemed adequate, however, until Colgate switched its role from a red carpet to a red mare.

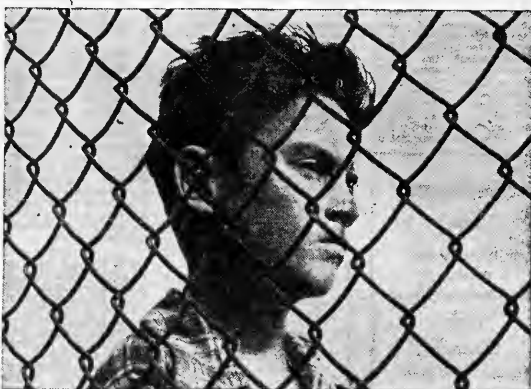

What has caused particular concern to observers of the Princeton football scene is the manner in which the line has yielded yardage to opponents no better than Penn and Colgate. The problem, obviously, is that even if the backfield becomes a much more cohesive unit, the line may remain sufficiently porous to permit fairly consistent scoring by the opposition.

Penn, for example, chopped up the Princeton forward wall for 25 yards but could gain only 17 against Brown. Colgate went almost all the way for its winning touchdown on the ground, although the first did come on a 17-yard pass on which Princeton was guilty of a badly missed tackle.

Although it is too late this season, the Orange and Black has not played consistently good football since any of the previous seasons it has met. The eye-catching performance against Columbia should not be discounted entirely, but the Lions now appear far weaker than their early upset of Brown indicated, and may not win again this year.

The net result is that steady improvement is essential if Princeton is to be in position to aim for the Ivy title when it plays its climactic November games. Players and coaching staff alike feel that if they can be freed from the many injuries that have plagued posed to the Little Tigers' two of eight for 52 yards. But they could come up with only one TD in "their half" while PHS scored twice in "its half."

Co-Captain Bill Gallant recovered a Tornado fumble on the PHS 17 in the opening period to thwart an early Trenton drive, but Coach Bob Perugini's charges moved 60 yards in four sets of downs at the start of the second quarter and culminated the march with a 10-yard scoring pass. Shortly after the beginning of the second half, PHS went the same distance, though only two plays were required for the Little Tigers' first TD. Tailback Edgar Riddick (see box) tossed a perfect jump pass to Co-Captain Vic Fasanella, who ran beautifully to the THS 25. On the very next call, Riddick knifed through right tackle, headed down the right sideline and, aided by a key block by Quarterback Joe Chibaro, tallied standing up. Butch Cross' placement was wide and Trenton led, 7-6.

Just before the end of the first period, the Little Tigers made the break that meant the verdict. Using a spread punt formation, devised by assistant coach Dick Wood for such an occasion, the Blue and White ends moved forward fast under a Riddick kick. Gallant hit the Tornado receiver hard and a vital fumble on the THS 14 ensued, with PHS tackle Bruce Larsen recovering. On the third play from scrimmage, Riddick threw to Jack Hawkins for six badly needed points and a surprise toss, from Cross to George Wilson, netted Princeton's extra point.

Jingoli Cites Stars. In addition to Riddick, the afternoon's outstanding offensive competitor, Jingoli cited Cross, who filled in nicely while Riddick was hurt in the first half, and Hawkins, one of four halfbacks who substituted for Alan Ammerman after PHS' No. 1 wingback fractured his right wrist early in the game. Hawkins, normally a fullback, learned the wingback's assignments during the halftime intermission and looked good enough to earn the starting role against Catholic. Earlier, he intercepted a Tornado pass in the PHS end zone as a THS threat failed in the last moments of the second period.

Defensively, Gallant, Fasanella and Joe Nutt were the Little Tiger stalwarts who contained Trenton throughout the wet afternoon, especially during the second half. Nutt, a 220-pound senior tackle, was moved from one side of the forward wall to the other by Gerry Groninger, PHS line coach, after Groninger determined where Trenton was doing the most damage. Nutt filled the hole successfully and, on several occasions, performed heroics that may have saved the day.

Jingoli called the Trenton backfield "the best group of backs we've seen all season." Though the Tornado ball-carriers picked up nearly three times as much yardage on the ground as Princeton's injury-riddled backfield, Jingoli lauded his defenders for outmaneuvering THS' front line and stopping the fleet Trenton runners when it counted most. In this respect, Gallant was particularly successful in preventing THS from bending his end. Looking back over the years, the Little Tiger coach noted that this year's victory over the Tornadoes was the seventh in his 11 seasons at PHS. Only twice have the arch-rivals from the state capital defeated Princeton in the present decade. And, curiously, Jingoli has never lost a game on the THS field — as a player for Cathedral High back in the 1930s and as PHS boss since 1946.

FLU CALLS SIGNALS

Hun Chances Hurt. The fact that they must travel to Pennsylvania to play the Little Friends Central football team this Friday is bad enough, but the fact that the flu epidemic has laid low Hun School's gridlers is even worse. Only 27 members of the Red and Black's 50-man varsity squad turned out for practice drills early this week, and as Town Topics went to press, it Continued on Page 26 looked as if Coach Hawley Waterman would lead a small bustle westward for the contest.

Among the key operatives kept out of action by the wide-spread bug, perhaps the most important is Charley Bennett, the Johnny Hunt at first-string quarterback. Bennett is an unlikely starter against Friends Central, if he gets into uniform at all, and Waterman will be obliged to insert reserve signal-callers who have never performed more than a few minutes at one time in any previous tilts at quarterback.

Considering the positive side of his dilemma for a moment, the Hun coach observed that two substitute guards, called on for extensive duty as a result of flu-stymied regulars, have come a long way since the first week of drills. He singled out Vic Moy, 220-pound heavyweight wrestler, and Walt Eichhorn, defensive lineman, for their efforts when the chips were farthest down for the red and black. Also on the happy side, Waterman reported that Steve Melzer, who broke an arm in the opening game, will be back on his guard slot on Friday with his limb in a cast.

Waterman, whose all-upset club will be seeking an upset win against the better-than-average Central eleven, is keeping his fingers crossed and hoping the flu toll decreases by game time. He doesn't want to lose any more first-stringers, or any more reserves or any more coaches, for that matter. Dick Wentworth, Hun line coach, was delirious by the flu last Friday and missed four days of practice as a result.

PCD Wins in Soccer. A pair of goals each by Dave Kelley and George Peterson gave Princeton Country Day School's soccer team a 4-1 victory over Valley Road last week.

The triumph raised the PCD mark to 2-1, with West Windsor on the schedule this week. Country Day took a 2-0 lead, with Valley Road averting a shutout in the second period and PCD scoring again in each of the final quarters.

The Blue and White football team will go after its first victory of the season this Thursday afternoon when it plays the Hun Juniors. Last Week at Elizabethtown, Pliny topped the Broadacres eleven, 25-0.

BOWLING NOTES
After indicating for several weeks that he was enjoying a "hot streak," Elmer Van Marter last week rolled his best game of the young season at Princeton Recreation Center, a sparkling 253, the second-highest league game registered so far this fall. . . Van Marter's effort marked a good week in the Tri-Country Firemen's League as 11 games of the 200-plus variety were posted and the usual amount of position-changing took place. . . Princeton Engine Company No. 1, thwarted the previous week, shot from third to first place, with 27 wins, dropping KFD (25) into the runner-up spot and Kingston (24) into third. . . Hook & Ladder (22), Belle Mead (21) and Bluewing and Rocky Hill (20 each) remained very much in contention. . . other firefighters recording solid scores included Ken Luck, 166-226-201 (for a 603 series), Sal Ferranti, 212, Russ Warren, 211, Bill Ewegen, 208-204, George Willis, 207-202, Bip Davison, 203, and Chick Tindall, 202.

By Popular Demand

Widespread flu contagion on the Princeton University campus caused postponement last Thursday evening of the scheduled showing of Princeton-Penn football game movies. Then, an upstairs Colgate eleven cancelled any desire to see the filmed results of its surprise assault on the toothless Tigers. So quite naturally, by popular demand, in fact—the more appetizing tussle with Penn will be screened at 8 p.m. this Thursday in McCosh 46.
A spokesman for the sponsoring Undergraduate Council said Dick Colman, Princeton's acting head coach, is slated to comment on the 13-9 defeat of the Quakers. The public is invited to view the special film free of charge. It is a color production, with portions in slow motion, and members of the audience will be permitted to request that certain key plays be repeated for complete understanding of the contest.

"In the Major loop, Decker's Dairy, with 24 wins, held a slight edge over Tiger Garage and Kass Kleiners (20 apiece); as Jim Lewis bowled 236, Wally Brown 214, Nick Seuler 207, Al Dempster 205, Bill Boying 201, Bill Bathie and Jim Kelley 200. . . Tiger Garage, with 28 wins, lost a little ground in the Princeton "A" League to Farr Hardware and Grover's Lumber (24 apiece); Earl Smith, 209, Bob Reed, 209, and Jack Crawford, 201. . . sixth-place Tiger Bus (18 wins) swept three games from bookending Maul Electric in the "B" circuit, thereby dropping Maul into a deadlock with the National Guard (30 each). . . top "B" performers were Jack Lucey, 237, Bill Murphy, 227, Joe Baldwin, George Sella, 220, Dick Edwards, 208, Bruce Ferguson, 205, Ed Duncan, 201, and Rudy Ehart, 201. . . in the Industrial League, Elmer Perantoni's 220 and Carlo Perantoni's 202 were the lone standout scores as Glenmoor again tied Nassau Del for top honors, with 28 wins each, and Wengryn Construction stayed close behind with 26.

Continuing her high scoring of the previous week, Marge Bloom paced distaff keggers of the Princeton Women's Bowling League with a 194 game, though Barbara Danser's 525 set (190-183-152) gave her the No. 1 spot in that department. . . other individual stars were Betty Kleiber, 182, Thelma Forman, 176, Sara Honeycutt, 173, Betty Cooper, 172, Helen Scott, 168-167, Edna Thomas, 168, Joyce Spain, 167, and Doris Curran, 166. . . Betty Wright Shop, with 36 wins, emerged from its four-way second-place deadlock to the Dayton V for the FVBD leadership, leaving Cranbury Pharmacy alone in second (34) and Town Topics, the Mixers and the Bermudians locked in third (40 apiece). . . the 5 Jills extended their margin over Decker's Dairy, 44-38, in the Women's Industrial League as Gilda DeVides' 177, Betty Kleiber's 169 and Carol Harris' 165 topped the solo scoring.

Birth List. A total of 10 births to area residents were recorded last week in Princeton Hospital. Of the total, seven were boys and three were girls.

"Little Drops of Water and Little Grains of Sand . . ."

It's the little things that get your goat . . . Those curtains you've been meaning to do something about for years, the room that "has just got to have something done to it", or the chair or sofa ragged and taggy from wear, that "should have been fixed long ago" . . .

Now is the best time to take care of those "little things" that gnaw at the back of your mind. Let us help you fix them up and start this fall with a clean slate.

Talk an Arctic Set. Rear Admiral Donald B. MacMillan, Arctic explorer, will speak on "Greenland, the Far North" at the next meeting of the Trenton Naturalist Club. The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, November 1, at the Junior High School No. 3, at West State Street and Parkway Avenue in Trenton.
 Mr. MacMillan made his first trip to the Arctic with the Peary-North Pole expedition in 1908 and has since then spent a lifetime sailing along the Laponian coast. He has specially designed a schooner, "Dowdell," which he sailed widely among the uncharted Baffin Land and Ellesmere Land coasts and the rocky coast of northwest Greenland. He has received many awards, including the Hubbard Gold Medal of the National Geographic Society. The lecture will be illustrated by color movies.

The lecture is the first of four to be sponsored by the Naturalist Club. Tickets for the series are $2.50 for an individual, $5 for the family (two adults and children). Admission for one lecture is 10 cents.

Dinner with Meet. Dr. Irving Levy will be the guest speaker at the final Birth Women of Princeton's meeting this Thursday at 8:35 p.m. at the Jewish Center. Dr. Levy will talk on "The History of the Hill Foundation," and music will be performed by Hillet members.

Mrs. Herman Cohen will preside over the business portion of the meeting. The program was arranged by Mrs. Frank Lewin, chairman, and Mrs. Egon Loebner, Hillet chairman. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Leon Goldberg and Mrs. William Herman, hospitality chairman.

A bazaar will be held by the organization this Friday, starting at 9:30 a.m. The sale will take place in front of the Permanent show room at Princeton Shopping Center with Mrs. Merrill Zinder, fund raising chairman, in charge.

Sanatorium Fund Drive Begins. Princeton residents have opened a six-week crusade for funds to support the Deborah Sanatorium located at Disonn Mills. The institution provides free care for tubercular, lung, heart and cancer patients regardless of race, creed or religion.

The campaign, which will terminate November 29, is headed by Mrs. Henry Abrams, chairman. Other officers are Joseph S. Holl, honorary chairman; James A. Floyd, secretary; Mrs. Helen Feddy, financial secretary; and Harry Ballot, treasurer.

Those taking part include Mrs. Marvin Bernstein, Mrs. Abe Brown, Mrs. Louis Abrams, Mrs. Jess Etkin, Mrs. Merrill Zinder, Mrs. William Milner, Mrs. James Floyd, Mrs. Ruth Goldberg, Mrs. Eileen Cohen, Mrs. Eileen Sauher, Mrs. Paul Urken, Mrs. Harry Winthrop, Mrs. Seymour Duganoff, Mrs. Helen Brover, Mrs. Mildred Hill, Mrs. M.M. Mrs. William Williams, Mrs. M. E. Reich, Mrs. Benjamin Isaacs, Mrs. Percy Sikowitz, Mrs. Irvin Vine, Mrs. Aaron Salkin and Mrs. Milton Horowitz. Contributions should be addressed to Deborah Drive Headquarters, 28-30 Witherspoon Street.

Cubs Earn Awards. Princeton Pack 77 has presented 27 members with badges for achievements. An additional 12 received membership at the monthly meeting conducted by Stanley Sieja, cubmaster.

Those receiving awards were Larry Butterfloss, Mark Ishadur, Ian, Bill Hinkson, Peter Foster, Steven Bussard, Chris Fischer, Scott Babin, Alan Vornacka, Robert Cohen, John Wheeler, Jay Foster, Tony Marston, William Schuman, Brian Heminger, John Switten, Thomas Callaghan, Fred Wandell, Scott Demme, Edward Wright, Ted Sieja, John Provenzano, Robert Anderson, Robert Decker, Ralph Latz, Jack McCarthy, Joseph McKee and Geoffrey Rake.

The dozen new Cubs received bobnet pins in a special ceremony. They include Elliott Frank, Mark Fischer, James Scullia,

Obituaries

Dominique C. Boudart, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Boudart of the Brunswick Pike, died October 19 after a short illness.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by a sister, Iris; and three brothers, Marc, Boudinard and Philip. The service was held at St. Paul's Church, with burial in the Princeton cemetery under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

A memorial service will be held Monday at 2:30 for the late Judge William Clark of 12 Battle Road, who died October 10 in Ceylon.

Judge Clark's funeral was held this past Monday in New York. At the service, the Rev. Princeton University Chaplain, Dean Ernest Gordon and the Rev. Dr. John V. Butler, pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church, will officiate.

Mrs. Alice Duryea Cook, 46, wife of Edmund D. Cook of 581 Lake Drive, died October 16 in Georgetown University Medical Center, Washington. She had had a lengthy illness.

Born in Trenton, Mrs. Cook was a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, Class of 1932. Treasurer of the real estate firm of which her husband is president and which he established here in his name some two decades ago, she was a member of the Present Day Club. She was also active in the Women's College Club and the Princeton Chapter, D.A.R.

In addition to her husband, she leaves a son, David K.; stepdaughters, Miss Susan D. and Miss Joslin Cook, all of Princeton; two stepsons, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Duryea of Pennington. The service was held at The Mather Funeral Home with the Rev. George Mair of the First Presbyterian Church officiating and burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

William W. DeBow, 88, of 120 Jefferson Road, died October 16 in Princeton Hospital.

A retired painter, he was born in Cranbury but had lived in Princeton for the past 65 years. Mr. DeBow was a member of the P.O.S. of A. and of the painters' local.

Husband of Mrs. Mary E. DeBow, he is also survived by a daughter, a grandson and a niece. The service was held at the Kimble Funeral Home with the Rev. Charles W. Marker, pastor of the Princeton Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery.

Karl A. Greenas, 51, proprietor of Bess's Trailer Shop at 80 Nassau Street, died October 20 in Princeton Hospital. He lived with his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Roman, in Hamilton Square.

He also leaves his wife, Mrs. Katherine Greenas; another daughter, two sisters and two grandchildren. The service at a Trenton funeral home was followed by burial in Princeton Cemetery.

Jon Durbin, Arthur Karcem, Gary Ellis, Ron Kingsley, Christopher Holder, James McNamara, Daniel Henig, John Switten and Glenn Christenson.

Laurence Butterfloss will serve as chairman of the pack committee for the year. Other members include Robert McQuade, recording secretary; Kenneth Wakefield, treasurer; E. W. Charles, institutional representative; Mrs. Mortimer Feldman, field secretary; Stanley Sieja, cubmaster; Robert Anderson, co-cubmaster; and George Callaghan, assistant cubmaster.

Cub Pack 13 States Meeting. Cub Scout Pack 13 will hold its monthly meeting Thursday, November 7, at 7 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church. Parents are invited.

A number of openings currently exist in Pack membership, according to William Lawder, chairman of the committee. Parents of "scoutable" Cubs should call Mr. Lawder at Princeton 3-1488.

Cubs Plan Halloween Party. Goblins and bogey men will rule the roost next Friday, November 1, when Lawrenceville Pack 27 holds its Halloween party. The Cubs will meet at 7:30 in the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church. Prizes will be awarded for the best masks. An awards ceremony will precede the party.

viewed by regular immassa at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and burial in Our Lady of Lourdes Cemetery.

Henry J. Rigley, 76, a former resident of Lawrenceville, died October 19 in Shenectady, N. Y. Born in Cranbury, Mr. Rigley was a retired farmer and had lived in the Princeton area most of his life before moving to New York State.

His wife, Mrs. Miriam Priest Rigley, survives, as do seven sons, three daughters, two sisters and a brother. The service was held at the Mather Funeral Home, with burial in Penns Neck Cemetery.

Ernest J. Robinson, 78, of 116 Witherspoon Street, died October 17 at Pinevaud. Born in Petersburg, Va., he was a member of Hod Carriers Local 50.

His wife, Mrs. Ida Skillman Robinson, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Summers of Princeton; six sons and four grandchildren. The service was held in the First Baptist Church, with the pastor, the Rev. Dr. William T. Parker, officiating. Burial was in Princeton Cemetery, under direction of the Mather Funeral Home.

SWING INTO DRIVE

Methodists Begin. At a church dinner next Friday, November 1, Princeton's Methodist church canvass committee will launch the fund-raising drive whose goal is the construction of a new educational wing and the complete remodeling of the main floor of the present church building.

The Rev. Alexander Stewart of the department of fund raising, Methodist church Board of Missions, will arrive in Princeton next Monday to direct the program, and members of the executive committee will meet with him at 8 p.m. the following day. On Wednesday, the canvass committee will meet to discuss canvass plans. The goal will be set at that time.

Every adult member of the church has been invited to attend the dinner as a guest of the church. Brief talks will be made, but there will be no solicitation of funds at this opening dinner.

The publicity committee for the drive includes John Milligan, chairman, Harold Zarker and Mrs. Donald Rugg.

Reformation Service. Two special services, one in Princeton and one in Hightstown, will commemorate Reformation Day and the anniversary of Luther's 95 theses.

The first service, sponsored by the Brainerd Ministerium, will be held this Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Chapel of the Peconic School, Hightstown. Dr. Norman V. Hope, professor of church history at Princeton, will be the featured speaker, and there will be a massed choir composed of singers from 12 different churches.

Next Sunday, November 3, the second annual Reformation Vespers will be held at 7 p.m. in the Princeton University Chapel. The services are sponsored by Concordia Society, the University's Lutheran student group.

Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan of the Field Theological Institute of the University of Chicago will preach. He is co-editor of the forthcoming 50-volume edition of the works of Martin Luther.

The special Reformation music which will be heard in the choir and instrumental work of Bach, with a chamber orchestra and a chamber chorus which will present chorales and selections from several cantatas. There will also be a special children's choir from Lutheran church schools in the Philadelphia area.

Guidance and Leadership. Six Associates in Christian Education have been appointed to the professional staff at the Second Presbyterian Church. These young students and instructors - all but one from the Seminary - will be in charge of the youth and adult programs planned for the coming year by the Session of the church.

The Seminary students are Mary Ellen Bollinger, Kermit Johnson, Peter Holmback and Gordon Cramer, Harriet C. Prichard, instructor at Princeton Seminary, and Dr. Early, student pastor. Westminster Church, complete the group. Mr. Early will serve as assistant organist. Dr. David S. York, minister of music.

Jewish Center Progressing. The new Princeton Jewish Center is expected to be completed by mid-December, according to the building firm of Lewis C. Brown & Sons, Inc. The roof deck was completed last week, the exterior masonry has been finished and 20% of the floors for the interior poured.

The center is located on one and one-quarter-acre tract of land at 435 Nassau Street. The structure will include a sanctuary, kitchen, social hall, church build-

NEW WING WILL SPROUT: Plans for a new wing on the Methodist Church are discussed by the Rev. Charles W. Marker (right), pastor, and B. Woodhull Davis, chairman of the committee that will raise funds for the new structure. The new addition will be a one-story educational building with provision for a second story to be a one-story office building and the sanctuary redecorated and refitted.

ing, rabbi's study and clerk's office. It was designed by Fulmer & Bowers, architects, of Princeton.

Ground for the center was broken in July this year. It will span some 7,000 square feet, and provisions have been made in design and construction to permit expansion.

Bulletin Notes. A Quiet Day will be observed next Tuesday by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Princeton Methodist church. The hours are 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Members of the group will bring a lunch for the quiet meal, and hot beverages will be provided by the church. Meditations will be led by Mrs. James Alexander, Mrs. Arthur Hightstown, and Mrs. Guy Woodward. Mrs. John Milligan will lead intercessory prayer.

All church women of Mercer and Middlesex counties may attend the Regional Meeting of the United Methodist Church, Jersey this Friday from 9:30 to 8 p.m. in the Reformed Church of Princeton. Mrs. John M. Larson of Princeton, Mercer County director, will be the presiding officer, and Mrs. George P. Thomas, president of the Princeton Council of Churchwomen, will lead the devotions of the morning session.

Ministers who did not elect social security coverage as self-employed persons may have until April 15, 1959 to file waiver certificates. Further information may be obtained from the social security office in the Post Office Building, Trenton.

LITTLE HOUSE BIG CHARM

For $25,000

A little while 19th century house, with charm (1) set in a clearing among 14 acres of lovely woods in a pleasant part of Princeton Township—need we say more? However, we'll add a few vital statistics, just for the record. Three bedrooms, living room with fireplace, separate dining room and a nice big kitchen complete the living plan. The only thing the house needs right now is redecorating, though for the future of an expanding family there are plenty of odd-on possibilities. What's more, the financing is unusually good.

MODERN TRADITIONAL
for $58,500

If that doesn't make sense, we'll quickly explain. The house is conventional in that it's a two-story brick and frame with the traditional rooms and walls dividing them. However, something about it gives the air of a roomy, wide-open modern—perhaps it's the good use of glass that allows the lovely outdoors to move in. Outstanding are the marvelous kitchen, completely equipped with built-in appliances, plus a playing-ate area with fireplace, four big bedrooms, and a fine light basement that has no beginnings of a small bedroom and bath. The closets are positively spectacular, in a different way from setting. On a high acre in the Western section, the house, which is beautifully landscaped, overlooks a wooded bank that runs down to a pond. No swimming, but think of the skating! Perfect, for play, practicality and planned a perfect house for a large family.
